Center of German Line Broken, Terracina Recaptured

Rome Road Cut by U. S. Avalanche Of Armor

Canadian Corps Smashes Enemy's Defenses at Their Strongest Point

Allied Headquarters, Naples, May 24 (AP).—Canadian tanks broke through the heart of the Hitler Line today and swept up the Liri Valley to the Melfa River, 13 miles from Cassino. American troops recaptured Terracina on the coast, and a Yank armored avalanche burst from the Anzio beachhead and cut the Appian Way barely 25 miles from Rome.

The Canadians, thrown into the Italian fighting as a separate army corps for the first time, smashed through the Hitler Line at its strongest point and raced on 5 miles beyond Pontecorvo, threatening to trap German garrisons there and at Aquino, two of the most powerful fortress towns in the enemy defense belt.

Supported by tanks, American troops fought their way back into Terracina after an hour and a half battle early today, in which they crushed German defenses in a hillside cemetery before the coastal town. American patrols first entered Terracina last Sunday, only to retire when Nazi reserves were rushed against them.

Yanks Swarm on Cisterna

Reoccupation of the town brought the Americans in the coastal sector to the southern tip of the Pontine Plain, less than 30 miles down the Appian Way from where bitter fighting raged for Cisterna, enemy bastion at the north of the Anzio beachhead.

Tonight doughboys swarmed in upon Cisterna after having cut a mile stretch of the Appian lifeline southeast of the town and severed its railway connection with Rome to the northwest. The Yanks literally were blasting their way through the Germans' intricate defenses within a half mile of Cisterna's town square.

In a late dispatch from the beachhead, Daniel De Luce of the Associated Press said the armored charge still was going forward unchecked at 8 p. m., and that hundreds of German prisoners still were streaming to the rear at sunset.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's hard-pressed Tenth Army forces in the Terracina sector were left with only one means of escaping the great Allied nutcracker—a secondary lateral road winding across the Italian waist to the Via Castilina—and at latest report a swift American column advancing through the mountains north of Terracina was within 3 miles of blocking that artery.

Nazi Convoys Destroyed

Late today flights of American Invader dive-bombers caught many Nazi convoys racing along the escape road from Terracina and destroyed nearly 100 vehicles. Scores of others were damaged and a road block was created at one point.

In the thirteenth day of their great offensive to destroy the enemy in Italy, the Allied armies had shattered both the iron ring and the Germans forged around the beachhead, and the line of steel

Nats Wipe Out 4-Run Deficit; Beat Tribe, 5 to 4

Cleveland, May 24 (AP).—Washington batsmen leveled an 11-hit barrage against three Cleveland pitchers today, winning the series opener, 5 to 4, before 1500 fans in League Park.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard effectively scattered eight Indian hits, and did not issue a single base on balls.

Overcoming a 4-run first-inning splurge by Cleveland, the Nationals routed Lefty Al Smith after 6 innings, and rang up 2 runs and 3 hits against Rookie Ed Klieman, who was charged with the loss although he pitched only one inning. Allie Reynolds completed the game.

The Nats tallied in the fourth on a double by Jake Powell and an infield grounder by Gil Torres. Two more runs crossed in the sixth on three singles and Pat Seerey's error and two more came in the seventh on three scratch singles.

By Robert C. Albright

The Senate Military Committee yesterday approved permanent promotions for 13 of the 14 general officers recommended by the President for advanced ratings, but passed over the nomination of Lieut. Gen. George Smith Patton, jr.

The committee report broke a stalmate of nearly eight months, chiefly occasioned by the former Seventh Army commander's slapping of a hospitalized soldier during the height of the Allied Sicilian drive.

Hines Voted Promotion

In addition to promotion of the 13 active generals, the committee approved a permanent grade of brigadier general for Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator and director of Reemployment and Retraining of the Office of War Mobilization. Hines, a former brigadier general, will become eligible for retirement at that grade.

Action on the 13 other generals followed ironing out of the last of a series of incidents that have tied up

Biddle Likens Avery to Lewis At Inquiry

Difference Is Lewis Didn't Resist Seizure, He Tells House Group

By Ben W. Gilbert

Attorney General Francis Biddle yesterday told a special House investigating committee t hat he considered Sewell Avery, chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward & Co., and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to be "peculiarly alike' 'because they don't recognize their Government."

Only important difference that Biddle noted between Avery and Lewis was that Lewis failed to resist Government seizure of the coal mines as Avery resisted the Government's action taking over Ward's Chicago properties.

During six hours of testimony, Biddle insisted that the Ward seizure action was legal and in accord with the Constitution. Republican members of the committee tried to tear down his arguments, but failed to shake his story. Democratic members indicated that they supported Biddle's theory that the President ha dbroad powers under the Constitution to act in war-borne emergencies without specific authorization by Congress.

"Must Treat Men Alike"

"Just because the war is on, you can't suspend the Constitution," Biddle said. "You must treat men all alike. You must treat Avery and John L. Lewis alike."

When Representative Charles Elston, (R., Ohio), asked why consideration had not been given to the seizure of union offices, Biddle replied that such a seizure could only be justified if it served to restore production — and added he didn't see how it could.

Meanwhile, the CIO and the National Farmers Union demanded that Chairman Pat McCarran of the Senate Judiciary Committee, hold hearings before issuing a report on his parallel investigation of the seizure.

McCarran has stated that a preliminary report would be issued

'I'll Get Him,' Woman Says Lind Boasted

Witness Relates Midnight Talk on Porch When Doctor Showed Revolver

By Winifred Nelson

"I'll get him first . . ."

This defiance by Dr. John E. Lind, who, she asserted, held a revolver in his outstretched hand as he talked on her front porch one midnight, was described to the Miller murder jury yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Fien, niece of the love-triangle slayer.

The dramatic conversation with Dr. Lind, she related in District Court, was said to have occurred in September of last year.

"'I expect to see and get him first,'" Mrs. Fien quoted Lind as saying. She testified the psychiatrist took a gun out of his pocket and declared: "'I am perfectly confident I can handle a gun better than he can, and if anyone around here is going to get killed, it won't be me.'"

Second Surprise Witness

Another surprise witness yesterday was Mrs. Margaret Werner, housewife, who said she saw Dr. Lind shift a gun from one coat pocket to another before her eyes as she sat at a table near his in the Neptune Restaurant, across the street from the Library of Congress.

She saw the gun on two different days while she was in the restaurant, Mrs. Werner said. Before she left the restaurant on the first occasion, the witness testified, a woman she identified in court as Mrs. Robert I. Miller joined Dr. Lind.

The second time Dr. Lind flashed his gun in the restaurant was on February 19—two days before he was shot, Mrs. Werner stated.

Woman Tells Story Twice

Mrs. Fien told her story twice in almost identical language. The dark-haired woman sat extremely straight in the witness chair and during cross-examination repeated, with hardly the change of a word, an account of the September night front-porch drama.

Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray probed for details by asking her if Lind had said "to see him and get him," or merely "to see and get him," without using the pronoun twice.

Mrs. Fien stated without hesitation that the second version was the accurate one.

But when Murray asked for details of following conversation, she was unable to supply them.

A telephone conversation she had with Lind after the incident, however, was clearly etched in her mind and she said Lind called her one day after Miller had been taken home sick from the courthouse.

More Lind Conversation

"Dr. Lind asked me what had happened to Miller and told me 'I hope it is nothing trivial. I hope he dies. I'm no hypocrite and won't we have a good time dancing on his grave,'" Mrs. Fien continued.

Asked who Lind was referring to as "we," the woman replied, "Mrs. Miller, Dr. Lind, and myself."

Cross-examination followed:

Q. Who was the first person you told about your conversation on the

Two McKellar Riders Lose In Conference

House Must Vote On TVA Fund and Employe Approval

House conferees on the Independent Offices appropriation bill yesterday refused to accept the Senate's two "McKellar riders" abolishing the TVA revolving fund and requiring Senate confirmation of all Government jobs paying over $4500 a year.

The House-Senate conference committee reached a quick agreement on non-controversial items in the bill, but fell out over the job and TVA riders. House managers said they will report a disagreement, and ask a separate House vote on both amendments.

One other almost equally controversial Senate amendment was accepted by the House conferees with slight modification—the so-called Russell FEPC rider.

Fitch Given Top Air Post In U. S. Navy

By James F. King

Vice Admiral Aubrey Fitch, who as commander of aircraft in the South Pacific for nearly two years "drove the Japanese out of the air" in that area, will become Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Air, Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal announced yesterday.

Fitch, who was introduced by Forrestal at his press conference will succeed Vice Admiral John S. McCain, whose new assignment was not disclosed.

Until Fitch actually takes over, Forrestal said, Rear Admiral A. W. Radford, former Pacific task force commander, will be acting in the Navy's top air post. Radford recently became assistant Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Air, under McCain.

Responding to questions Forrestal declined to reveal the new assignment of Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., who has driven the Japanese from the seas in the same South Pacific area in which Fitch helped clear the air; said "military security prevents my giving any information now" concerning reports in Congress that the United States has transferred war vessels

Army Orders Huge Increase In Big Guns

Ammunition Demands Stepped Up 1000% For Some Sizes

By William Frye

Associated Press Staff Writer

A tremendous increase in the heavy artillery program has been ordered by the Army on the eve of the liberation of Europe, officials disclosed last night.

For weapons of 155 millimeter size and greater, ammunition requirements have been stepped up an average of 400 to 500 per cent, with the increase for some sizes running as high as 1000 per cent above current schedules.

The production schedules for the weapons themselves have been advanced correspondingly, with emphasis on the 155 howitzer, the 155 gun or "Long Tom," the 8-inch gun and the 240-millimeter weapon.

Instituted within the past few weeks, the ammunition program alone represents a dollar-volume increase of approximately $750,000,000 for the balance of 1944 and 1945.

Some phases of the program already are under way and by midsummer it will require the reopening of some of the TNT production lines, the powder plants and the bag-loading plants previously closed by the Army or placed on a standby basis.

Allies Batter Foe Trapped at Burma Bases

Fliers Shift Weight Of Attack to Support Of Ground Forces

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, May 24 (AP).—Allied fighters and fighter-bombers have shifted the weight of their attacks to direct support of ground troops which have bottled up the Eighteenth Japanese Division around its big bases in north Burma, it was announced today.

Their blows fell on Myitkyina, where besieged Japanese still had a foothold, on Katkyo, on the Irrawaddy River bend 4 miles southward, and on the main Japanese base in the Mogaung Valley at Kamaing to the west.

Counterattacks Repulsed

The trapped Myitkyina garrison and Japanese forces in the Zigyun-Katkyo area counterattacked but were repulsed by Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's Chinese combat troops.

The Chinese command in Chungking said troops in the western outskirts of Myitkyina had captured the junction of a railway and a road leading into the town from the Allied-held air strip.

The air-borne Chindits continued pressure south of Mogaung, killing more than 100 Japanese in 48 hours, while the Chinese Thirty-eighth and Twenty-second Divisions advancing down the valley from the north scored other successes, the Twenty-second seizing six enemy positions west of the river.

Peace Plan Outlined

Churchill Hints Tightening Of Postwar German Frontiers

London, May 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill declared today Germany might have her home frontiers reduced after the war if that should seem necessary for future peace, and he advocated a postwar "world organization" armed with "overwhelming military power" to keep this peace.

Churchill specifically, though diplomatically, advised Spain and Turkey that an Allied victory was coming with or without the support of new recruits, and, declaring that the war has been growing "less ideological in character," he said "there seems to be a great desire among the people of Britain and Russia to be friends."

Opening a foreign policy debate in Commons, Churchill spoke for an hour and 25 minutes, running the gamut of Britain's foreign relations. He said gravely and simply that the British Commonwealth and Empire had now discussed and solved all their major immediate problems and were ranged in complete unity with the Allies "to beat the enemy as soon as possible."

He mentioned only once the "Western Front" as it is commonly defined, and then to observe jocularly that "all this talk" of invasion across the Channel was keeping Hitler frantic. He gave no hint as to when or where the assault would be.

Much of his speech was devoted to his suggested "world organization," which he said would embody much of the structure of the League of Nations. A conference of dominion Prime Ministers only a few days ago agreed on such an organization.

Japan as well as Germany were placed by Churchill beyond all hope of negotiation short of utter capitulation.

"The Atlantic Charter," the Prime Minister said with measured emphasis, "in no way binds us about the future of Germany. It has no quality of bargain or contract with our enemies. It was not an offer to the Germans to surrender.

"The principle of unconditional surrender will be adhered to as far as Nazi Germany and Japan are concerned.

"There is no question of Germany enjoying any guarantee that she will not undergo territorial changes if it would seem that the making of such changes would

Nazi Letter Introduced

Hitler Began U. S. Recruiting In 1933, Sedition Jurors Told

By James E. Chinn

The Government yesterday reached into dust-covered files of a special House committee which 10 years ago uncovered the first seeds of Nazi propaganda planted in the United States and removed almost forgotten records to use in prosecuting the 29 defendants in the mass sedition case.

First of these to be offered in evidence was a photostatic copy of a letter which came from Germany shortly after Hitler rose to power in 1933, exhorting Nazi sympathizers in this country to intensify their promotional propaganda activities.

Written in German by Heinz Spanknoegel, a Nazi propaganda director in Wuerzburg, the letter was addressed to Hans Strauss in Detroit who at that time was head of the League of the Friends of New Germany, the organization that was later to become the German-American Bund.

Its salutation, "Dear League Member Strauss" was followed by an announcement of the reorganization of the National Socialist Labor Party in Germany and new instructions and decrees for the friends of national socialism in the United States. There were special instructions for the "Comrades of the Steel Helmet" and other "nationalist organizations" in this country to join the Nazi movement. The closing words in the letter were:

"I shall expect further promotional work from all groups, and greet all with 'Heil Hitler'."

Early Links Bridges Report To Statement on Italian Ships

By the Associated Press

Reports that the United States has transferred the cruiser Milwaukee and possibly other fighting ships to Russia brought these developments yesterday:

1. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early complained that "certain" unnamed persons were making public, through members of Congress, military information which would otherwise be unpublishable under the censorship code.

2. Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) replied that no question of military safety was involved and suggested the Administration show a greater frankness in dealing with Congress and the public."

Bridges told the Senate Tuesday he had received reports that "one o rmore units of the American Navy" have been turned over to Russia. He asserted the people were entitled to know whether such transfers had been made as "a part of our patchwork policy of appeasing Russia." Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) said in the House he understood the cruiser Milwaukee and other ships had been or would be transferred.

Asked yesterday if he had any reaction to the Bridges' speech, Early said "that is one way certain people seem to have of getting information out that is very probably of military value that some other nations would like to have, but can't get it from the executive branch of the Government.

"They can get it to their friends on the Hill who in turn will pass it out as privileged matter, hence making it publishable under the code.

Allies Spread Havoc From West Wall To Balkans

77 Nazi Planes Downed on Berlin Run; 32 Bombers, 13 Fighters Lost

London (Thursday), May 25 (AP).—Berlin experienced an air-raid alert early today as RAF night bombers apparently followed up a record American-led daylight assault of 7000 sorties against fortress Europe.

A target of Flying Fortress bombs Wednesday, the German capital was warned by the Nazi radio of the approach of night raiders shortly after midnight. It was the eleventh American raid on Berlin.

From the Atlantic wall to points deep in the Balkans, more than 5500 tons of explosives were dropped by British-based and Italy-based squadrons in the daylight attacks.

Seventy-seven German fighters were shot down in fierce battles along the route to Berlin, which was attacked by a strong force of Flying Fortresses from above a cloud cover, while from all British-based operations 32 bombers and 13 fighters were missing, a communique said tonight.

A Liberator wing pounced on the Paris area, undefended by the overmatched Nazi air force, and hammered enemy airfields at Melun and Orly to the south and Creil to the northeast, making its bomb runs against light to moderate flak.

Strike in Austria

In a gigantic coordinated assault, Allied bombers and fighters from bases in Italy flew 2700 sorties, striking in the vicinity of Vienna, at rail lines in northern Italy and at other targets in Austria and Yugoslavia.

Other fighters and fighter bombers in this sixth straight day of aerial blows raked railyards and airfields behind the Channel fortifications in occupied France and Belgium. These, with the bigger raids on Berlin and Paris, added up to 3800 sorties from Britain.

The day's kill was the largest since May 15, when 125 enemy aircraft were destroyed in attacks on Berlin and Brunswick, and cut further into the plane reserves the Germans are hoarding for D-day.

Fortress gunners claimed 48 Nazi planes in combat over Berlin and fighters bagged 29 more. The bomber loss was the heaviest since May 12 when 42 were downed smashing synthetic oil plants around Leipzig.

Raid Warning Broadcast

The Budapest radio broadcast an air-raid alert late tonight, signaling the beginning of the seventh day of aerial blows.

British Typhoons made a highly successful twilight attack on large oil storage installations near Amiens.

Three U. S. fighters were missing from the late day bombing and strafing missions into northern France, headquarters announced in a supplemental communique which said that the fighters had met some opposition, destroying two Nazi planes in the air and others on the ground. Thirteen American fighters were lost escorting the heavy bomber missions.

San Diego, Calif., May 24 (AP).—Harold Bell Wright, who left the pulpit to become one of America's famed fiction writers, died today in a Lajolla, Calif., hospital. He was 72.

Wright became ill about two weeks ago and entered the hospital last week. Death was attributed to bronchial pneumonia. His wife was at the bedside when he died.

Only last month he sold his $70,000 ranch home, known as "Quiet Hills Farm," near Escondido, 30 miles northeast of here, and moved to San Diego.

War Sidelights

Navy Makes Three Raids On Kuriles

Pearl Harbor, May 24 (AP).—Navy search planes renewed the assault on Japan's northern flank in three raids on the Kuriles, announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Venturas from Aleutian bases on Sunday gave the Paramushiro naval base and nearby Shumushu Island the fifth bombing of the month. The attackers returned without loss.

A single search plane raided Shumushu again two days later.

Keeping the enemy on the alert in the central Pacific, the Seventh Army Air Force sent Liberators and Mitchells to bomb air fields, gun positions and buildings at Ponape at the eastern end of the Carolines.

Wounded Yanks Flown East

San Francisco, May 24 (AP).—The first contingent of 375 ill or wounded veterans from the South Pacific left for the East aboard 12 huge planes of the Air Transport Command today.

It was the largest evacuation of its kind from the West, sending the men to 16 hospitals and in most cases to within 300 miles of their homes.

The 12 planes used in the movement were equipped with oxygen tents, blood plasma and surgical equipment.

Return of Man In 1936 Killing Poses Problem

The question of who will return Evans Baxter, about 28, to Prince Georges to face a murder charge following his capture early yesterday in North Carolina by FBI agents, arose last night.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie said Baxter, indicted by a Prince Georges County grand jury on charges of slaying Eugene C. Hancock, 68, of the 500 block 3d st. ne., would be returned to Maryland by the FBI. The latter, however, said FBI made the arrest, but it is customary in such cases for county authorities to bring the man back. Bowie had requested the FBI to make a search for Baxter several months ago.

Hancock was found shot in woods near Piscataway, December 28, 1936, and the case has remained unsolved for eight years. Charges of murder were brought against Baxter's brother, Carvin, a neighbor of Hancock, but the case was dismissed. Meanwhile, the search for Evans continued.

Bowie said Baxter will be tried in Prince Georges Criminal Court when it meets in October.

the entire promotion list since last October.

Just before the vote, the committee received written assurances from Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, that the War Department would not destroy any records dealing with Army investigations into subversive activities without prior approval of Congress.

Approval of the list had been scheduled Monday, but hit another snag while a three-man subcommittee investigated reports of an Army order broad enough, members said, to permit destruction of the records.

Not Disapproved

Senator A. B. Chandler (D., Ky.) chairman of a nominations subcommittee, said the Patton nomination for a two-grade jump to the permanent rank of major general was not voted down—"it was discussed and held over."

Chandler said he personally was opposed to confirming Patton "because he slapped an American soldier." Some other members of the committee were known to have been ready to forget the Sicilian incident until the general's recent London speech declaring the United States, Britain and Russia were destined to "rule the world." The London speech antagonized enough votes to tie up his advancement indefinitely. One member suggested a brilliant record by Patton in the coming liberation drive would change the committee view.

Approved for permanent promotions to the rank of major general were Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces; Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff under Gen. George C. Marshall, Lieut. Gen. Jonathan N. Wainwright, now a prisoner of the Japanese, and Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commanding American troops in China.

For Brigadier General

Approved for the permanent Army rank of brigadier general, together with their present rank, were:

Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, lieutenant colonel, Air Corps; Lieut. Gen. Carl Spaatz, colonel, Air Corps; Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, lieutenant colonel, Infantry; Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, lieutenant colonel, Air Corps; Lieut. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, colonel, Air Corps; Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, colonel, Infantry; Maj. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery; Maj. Gen. Walter B. Smith, lieutenant colonel, Infantry, and Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, lieutenant colonel, Infantry.

Allied Radio Asks For Information on Foe's Activities

London, May 24 (AP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied invasion commander, tonight sought to turn Europe's restless millions into a vast espionage force to support the impending Allied blow from the west, with the broadcast of new sets of concise spy instructions to the European underground.

His radio spokesman called upon people of the occupied countries to supply complete and accurate information on the enemy's movements when the invasion gets under way.

The broadcast stressed accuracy, but warned the people, however, to "do nothing active now."

"Meanwhile, he (Eisenhower) urges you to act with the utmost caution, exercise patience, associate only with trusted patriots, and, above all, maintain the discipline without which the enemy can destroy you," the speaker said.

The people were asked to memorize the essential headings of when, what and how many, where and in what direction and at what speed anything special noted concerning the enemy's movements.

The spokesman pointed out that the commander in the field must depend on bits of information pieced together from all sources. He emphasized that "undated" reports would be useless.

The BBC told French patriots that instructions would be given to them regularly, and added "it is no longer a question of voluntary service. It is now an order to you."

From the Channel a German naval correspondent reported that while great preinvasion air battles are raging "there is no sign of invasion by sea, particularly not in the Channel, the Gulf of Biscay or the North Sea." But the German radio quoted Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels as telling his subordinates in Berlin that both belligerents were concentrating forces for a decision.

American Bund and the Government's initial witness, identified the letter as a copy of the original he said he had read in the Chicago headquarters of the Friends of New Germany in June, 1933. He then stood aside temporarily while William M. McLeod, jr., assistant to South Trimble, veteran clerk of the House, identified the copy as one taken from the files of the now defunct Nazi investigating committee headed by Representative Samuel Dickstein (D., N. Y.), predecessor of the un-American (Dies) Investigating Committee.

Two hours late in starting because of the absence of James J. Laughlin, attorney for two of the defendants, the trial literally dragged through the afternoon as defense attorneys quibbled and wrangled over arrangements for making available to them the hundreds of Government exhibits to be introduced in evidence. As for actual progress in the trial itself, the day was virtually wasted.

Laughlin Absent

When court convened at 10 a. m., Attorney J. Austen Latimer announced the absence of Laughlin. He explained Laughlin was forced to go to Fort Myer, Va., to represent a client ina court-martial and he would look after the interests of his two clients in the sedition case—Edward James Smythe and Robert Noble—if they were willing.

"It's OK with me," promptly agreed Smythe.

Noble, however, announced the arrangement was "not satisfactory" to him.

"I have wanted to represent myself, but the court has held that I'm not competent," he said. "I have represented myself before in other cases, and I feel I am fully as competent as Jones or Dennis to represent myself." (He referred to Lawrence Dennis and Ellis O. Jones, two defendants acting as their own counsel.)

But Justice Edward C. Eicher thought otherwise. He ordered an immediate suspension of the proceedings and directed the United States marshal "to bring Laughlin into court."

Nearly two hours later—precisely 11:500 a. m.—Laughlin leapend from a taxicab in front of the courthouse and headed for the court room. Newspaper photographers dashed in his direction, and he dashed around the court building to escape them.

Justice Eicher reconvened court at noon without asking Laughlin for an explanation or even referring to his absence. To curious newspaper reporters the attornye said his mission to Fort Myer was "a military secret."

and concrete they installed across the Liri Valley.

With Allied air forces simultaneously pounding from the skies and Allied warships shelling from the sea, the campaign to crush the Nazis raged toward its crisis. The enemy, though badly mauled by the fury of the Allied onslaught, sill was resisting with undiminished fierceness.

Yanks, French Drive Ahead

An official announcement said the Canadian corps "greatly distinguished itself" in the Liri Valley.

French forces, having captured Pico, 5 miles west of Pontecorvo, on Monday, joined American armored formations in driving north toward the Via Casilina, only 7 miles away acros sthe Liri Valley. This French-American onrush, unless checked, would quickly outflank the Pontecorvo Germans and sever their main communication lines with Rome—both rail and highway.

An American column thrusting up through the rugged mountains from the coastal area advanced approximately 12 miles in 36 hours and seized Monte Alto, 10 miles north of Terrancina and about the same distance west of Pico. It was one of the most brilliant operations of the offensive and placed this Yank contingent about 30 miles from its jumping-off pont a fortnight ago. This was the American column which threatened to chop the enemy's escape road from Terracina.

Everywhere along the battle fronts columns of German prisoners filed back toward Allied cages in mounting numbers. In the official bag already was well over 7500. More than 300 were taken in the opening hours of the beachhead push yesterday, when American armor lunged through to the Appian Way almost unchecked.

Anzio Attack Surprised Foe

Prisoners said the beachhead attack was completely unexpected. It was not until noon—hours after th eassault began—that the first Nazi tanks appeared, and they were smothered promptly by Allied artillery. Even today, with Cisterna under immediate attack, the Germans had not yet committed large forces against the American spearhead. A German battalion commander and his entire staff were among the prisoners.

On the western flank of the beachhead, British troops pierced Nazi defenses alon gthe Moletta River, and thrust on directly toward Rome. Only on the east was the beachhead offensive stalled for the time being. Littoria still was in German hands, and American troops attacking there were pinned down by exceptionally heavy mortar and machine-gun fire. Civilians had evacuated Littoria.

(The German high command said the battle was increasing in intensity and acknowledged that "major breaches" had been made in the tors. It said "particularly heavy German defenses in several sec- fighting" was in progress on both sides of Cisterna.)

without hearing. The report was understood to be in the rough draft stage at present.

Murray Asks To Be Heard

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, wrote McCarren, asking to be heard "before any report is issued calling on the Senate to take action in this case."

James G. Patton, president of the Farmers Union, asked McCarran to summon representatives of Ward labor and management because "we cannot afford star-chamber proceedings when the national good is at stake."

Samuel Wolchok, president of the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes, stated that issuance of a report without hearings "would be a violation of the spirit of the Constitution," and would fail to "comply with the mandate of the Senate" calling for the inquiry.

Biddle insisted that seizure of the Ward plants could be justified under the Connally-Smith Anti-strike Act on the ground that "the word 'production' as used in Section 3 (of the act) includes all essential steps in the preparation, manufacture, assembly, maintenance, storage, repair, transportation, and distribution of articles or materials which are required for the war effort or which may be useful in connection therewith."

Definition Called 'Novel'

Representative Carl Curtis (R., Nebr.), branded the interpretation of "novel, unusual and unheard of definition of production," and demanded that Biddle provide him with a "normal" definition.

Biddle replied that the definition would depend on the context of the statute in which it was to be construed.

MILLER

front porch when Lind showed you a gun?"

A. My husband. Then I told Marguerite and my brother. I've discussed it with many people. I can't tell you exactly.

Q. Was it fear for Miller's safety that made you tell others about it? A. Well, it was rather an unusual incident in my life and I thought my husband and Marguerite should know about it. And my brother asked me what I knew of the incident. My brother is George H. Ely. He is now in Nevada with the Air Corps.

Husband Says Wife Told Him

Her husband, Edward A. Fien, an employe of the U. S. Maritime Commission, followed her on the stand, and said his wife had told him about Lind's conversations.

"Some time after that incident, I had a phone call from Miller who said he might be forced to subpena my wife in getting a separation from her," Fien related.

"I told him I was sorry about it, and advised him to take the situation philosophically," he continued.

The accused man's 42-year-old wife was back on the stand yesterday, relating that while she left her husband's bills unpaid, she bought large quantities of food for Dr. Lind, made payments on his coupe, his life insurance, department store bills, and court judgments during the five years of their relationship.

She even told of cashing in her insurance policy to obtain money so Lind could pay a woman who waited 20 years expecting him to marry her, Mrs. Miller explained.

Mrs. Miller Questioned

Then Prosecuting Attorney Daniel B. Maher questioned her:

Q. Did you ever write a letter to William Lind (the slain man's son) at his Army station and tell him you intended to move in with them pretty soon?—A. Oh! Never.

Q. Did you order certain improvements in Lind's house?—A. No, they were his own doing.

Q. Where did you meet Dr. Lind?—A. In the Supreme Court building through another physician—very casually.

Q. Did you ever plan a divorce?—A. I never thought of such a thing.

Q. Did you ever give Lind any information on your marital status as a preliminary matter to getting a divorce?—A. Never.

Q. Maybe this card will refresh your memory (handing her a file card). Do you recognize the handwriting?—A. Oh, yes; it's Dr. Lind's.

The witness studied the card, a puzzled expression on her face, for several minutes, and then exclaimed she couldn't understand its meaning.

RAIDS

across the Channel twice during the day to lash strategic targets in northern France. Thebombers and their escorting fighters all returned.

Their second mission was completed just before dark and the objectives again included the port area of Dieppe as well as five important airfields at Denain, Lille-Nord, Cambrai-Epinoy, Beaumont-Sur-Oise and Abbeville Drucat.

Earlier in the day they hit airfields at Aichet, Beauvais-Tille and Beaumont le Roger.

Railways and other military targets in northern France were attacked by RAF Typhoons and Spitfires.

Tonight hundreds of Allied planes streamed across the Dover Strait with more loads of destruction. Thunderbolts and Lightnings and fighter-bombers mingled with RAF formations in the outbound traffic.

The Mediterranean air force sent its raiders—which may have numbered 1500, counting escort—against the Nibersdorf aircraft factory and other targets near Vienna as well as military targets at Graz in Austria and Zagreb in Yugoslavia, encountering spirited opposition in some sections.

The German radio reported two fierce aerial battles were fought over the Berlin and Vienna areas as the Luftwaffe challenged the "unusually strong" American formations' terrific fire power.

Expect Decisive Operations

As bombs burst in Berlin, German propaganda spokesmen declared the raids marked "the eve of decisive operations against the Continent."

DNB reported the population suffered losses as incendiary and high explosive bombs fell in residential quarters and on the outskirts, and the Berlin radio said one American four-engined bomber crashed in Potsdammer Platz.

Crews said Berlin was covered by scattered clouds which in some places rose blindingly to 23,000 feet. Intense flak there included ground rockets.

It was the second attack on Berlin within 12 hours. RAF Mosquitos had dropped block-busters there last night and other night bombers kept hammering German railroad facilities in France.

The German agency Transocean claimed 10 Allied bombers were downed in air battles near Wiener Neustadt in the Vienna district, where Liberators bombed the Wollensdorf airfield.

render more secure and more lasting the peace of Europe."

Churchill's remarks seemed to suggest the Axis satellite powers might "work their passage home" on some conditions not quite so sweeping.

Churchill, once among Britain's most outspoken foes of Communism, spoke warm words of friendship for Russia, observing that the Soviet Union is changing.

"As this war has progressed," he said, "it has become less ideological in character in my opinion. . . .

"Profound changes have taken place in Soviet Russia. The Trotskyite form of Communism has been completely wiped out. The victories of the Russian armies have been attended by a great rise in the strength of the Russian state and a remarkable broadening of its views.

Russian Religious Rebirth

"The religious side of Russian life has had a wonderful rebirth. The discipline and military etiquette of the Russian armies is unsurpassed. . . .

"The terms offered by Russia to Romania make no suggestion of altering the standards of the society of that country and were in many respects, if not all, remarkably generous. Russia has been very patient with Finland. The comintern has been abolished—that sometimes is forgotten."

As to the immediate world picture, these were Churchill's principal points:

1. That the Allies after having handed Turkey 80 million dollars worth of American and British arms had "suspended the process of trying to exhort Turkey to range herself with the victorious United Powers." He said that in any case the Allies would win in the Balkans, althuogh Turkish aid would be "a great acceleration in the process" and would assure her a position at the peace table she would not get otherwise.
2. An unusual gesture of friendliness toward Spain, in which he declared he had "no sympathy with those who think it clever and even funny to insult and abuse the Spanish government."

De Gaulle to Visit Britain

3. That "with the approval of President Roosevelt" Gen. Charles de Gaulle was coming to England shortly as an invited guest because "there is nothing like talking things over."
4. That the Italian people after complete liberation would be free to establish their own government so long as it was democratic—"I emphasize the word democratic because we could not allow any form of Fascism to be set up in any country with which we have been at war."
5. That "things between Russia and Poland are not so bad as they may appear on the surface."
6. That Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia was sending a personal military representative here in order "that all forces in Yugoslavia may be united under the military direction of Marshal Tito to expel the Hitlerite invaders."

Postwar Plan Outlined

Churchill's suggestion for a postwar organization somewhat similar to the old League of Nations but armed to the teeth against breakers of the peace was this:

1. A "world council" made up of the big victors—the United States, Britain and Russia, for example—to be actually in charge of keeping the peace by maintaining all the force necessary.
2. A world assembly of all powers "whose relation to the world executive or controlling power . . . I am in no position to define."

"We intend," he said, "to set up a world order and organization equipped with all the necessary attributes of power in order to prevent future wars or the planning of them in advance by restless and ambitious nations."

Through such a scheme, Churchill said solemnly, "we should try to raise the glorious continent of Europe, parent of so many powerful states, from its present miserable condition as a kind of volcano of strife and turmoil to its old glory as a family of nations and as a vital expression of Christendom."

AGENCIES

less they receive direct authorizations or appropriations frmo Congress.

The modification approved by the conferees in effect would give these agencies another six months' respite. As originally passed by the Senate, Executive-order offices would have had only untiu July 1 of this year to get congressional clearance. The House conference amendment would extend the deadline to January 1, 1945.

The Senate TVA rider, slightly less drastic tha nthe original long series of TVA restrictions proposed by Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), would prevent the Tennessee Valley Authority from utilizing its receipts from power sales for operating expenses and place the agency on a strict appropriation basis.

McKellar's Long Feud

The amendment, stemming from McKellar's long feud with TVA Chairman David E. Lilienthal, is opposed by nearly all other legislators from the TVA area, where the agency is politically popular. With McKellar, it has become a grudge with Lilienthal, whom he has futilely asked the President to fire.

McKellar's "patronage rider" is another perennial, that hitherto has always been stopped in the House. If it is approved, all Government employes receiving $4500 or more annually would be subject to Senate confirmation, in the same manner that Cabinet and other policy-making posts are now confirmed. It has never been popular in the House, which would not benefit from the added Senate "patronage."

Navy Employe Held for Trial In $900 Deficit

Charged with embazzlement of $900 in Navy Department funds, James H. Fowle of 1669 Columbia rd. nw., civilian employe at Federal Office Building No. 2 of the Navy Annex in Arlington, has been released under $1000 bond following a hearing in Alexandria before Stanley King, United States Commissioner for the Eastern District of Virginia.

He was held for trial in the United District Court at Alexandria. A date will be set at the opening of the June term on June 5 when the docket is called by Judge Robert N. Pollard of Richmond.

Detective William C. Curtis of the United States Public Building Administration, who brought the complaint in the hearing before Commissioner King, charged Fowle with embezzling $750 entrusted to him by a Navy lieutenant and $150 entrusted to him by a Marine Corps lieutenant colonel.

Two Men Sentenced to Jail In Delinquency of Girl, 17

Convicted of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old Alexandria girl yesterday, two married men later appealed their cases to the Alexandria Corporation Court after being sentenced to the Virginia State Work Farm at Goochlands by Judge James Reece Duncan during a morning hearing in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

Pasquale M. Dalesandro, 30, alias "Mullin," of Elizabeth, N. J., was sentenced to one year. Alexandria police said he also was under $5000 bond in connection with a black market case in New Jersey.

His companion, Jerome S. Accardi, 26, alias "Gabby," also of Elizabeth, N. J., who said he was a carnival showman with the Garden State Show, was sentenced to six months. Both are being held under $1000 pending an appeal hearing in Corporation Court.

The two men and the Alexandria girl, who had been missing since May 7, were apprehended Monday near Savage, Md., by Maryland State police.

It was understood the girl had been employed at the United States Naval Torpedo Station in Alexandria. She was released in the custody of a married sister living in Washington until the hearing yesterday in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

Lieutenant Hawes of Alexandria said that there was no action which could be taken by the police against her.

Forrestal also praised the work of Lieut Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor who has been serving as flag secretary to Halsey in the South Pacific.

The Navy Secretary introduced Fitch to reporters as the man who "integrated the air forces which drove the Japs out of the air in the South Pacific" and when the new Secretary of the Navy mentioned that Fitch had participated in the Battle of the Coral Sea, the admiral remarked:

"Yes, I had the honor of being sunk in that engagement."

National GOP To Get Protest In Md. Dispute

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—Paul Robertson, chairman of the Baltimore City Republican Committee, announced today he would lodge a protest at the National GOP Convention in Chicago against reduction of the number of convention votes given the party faction which he heads.

Robertson, who carried Baltimore City in his unsuccessful primary campaign against Blanchard Randall, jr., had claimed the right to have his forces name al lthe national convention delegates from the Third and Fourth Congressional Districts, which lie entirely in the city.

Half Vote for Each

At yesterday's State convention, however, a rival slate of delegates was offered from the Third District and one of the political lieutenants of State GOP Chairman Galen L. Tait and Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore suggested that both delegations be sent to Chicago with a half vote each.

This suggestion was approved by the convention over the opposition of the Robertson forces.

Robertson said today that a protest would be lodged at the National Convention against this action, which reduced the voting strength of his forces from four to three votes.

Delegates to the National Convention also will name a new national GOP committeeman, a post which Robertson is seeking. The Tait-McKeldin candidate for the office is generally believed to be Jacob France, oil man and industrialist.

Patronage at Stake

Should the Republicans win the Presidency in the fall and fail to elect a United States Senator from Maryland, Federal patronage would fall to the National Committeeman.

National Convention delegates are:

At large—McKeldin, Tait, Morgan C. Harris of Cumberland; Gordon Harris of Talbot County, Mrs. Margaret D'Unger of Baltimore, Arthur C. Keefer of Prince George's County, Harry O. Levin of Baltimore and William Conway of Wicomico County (half votes).

First District—Clifton Miller of Kent County and Robert F. Duer of Somerset County. (Full votes).

Second District—Leland Rockwell of Baltimore County and Theodore F. Brown of Carroll County. (Full votes).

Third District—Charles W. Main, Jr., C. Edwin Robinson, Sheridan F. Smith and Erik Frederick, all of Baltimore. (Half-votes).

Fourth District—Robertson and Donald Boyce. (Full votes).

Fifth District—George T. Burrougs of Prince George's County and William E. Fletcher of Anne Arundel County. (Full votes).

Sixth District—Harry Legore of Frederick County and Roger Hershey of Washington County. (Full votes).

Alternates were named for each delegate.

Police Chief's Trial Ended In Fatal Beating of Youth

Luray, Va., May 24 (AP).—Evidence was completed today in the trial of Lawrence Good, 36, former chief of police of Stanley, Va., charged with beating to death last September 6 Marvin Jones, 19, also of Stanley, and the case is expected to be placed in the hands of a Page County circuit court jury tomorrow after argument by both prosecution and defense have been heard by Judge H. W. Bertram.

Both sides completed presentation of evidence late this afternoon, the defense placing on the stand numerous character witnesses among whom was C. C. Louderback, member of the House of Delegates from Page County.

Good, who is being defended by Lynn Lucas and Everett Will, both of Luray, and J. L. Marshall of Front Royal, took the stand in his own behalf this afternoon, and related the circumstances leading to the beating administered Stanley youth.

The former police chief testified that he had hit Jones only three times with his night stick, once on the head, once about the head and a third time about the eye. He asserted that Jones threatened him with a knife.

Relating the incidents leading up to his action, Good said that Jones had been ordered to leave town nad had grown surly when asked to comply with the order. Good said he placed the boy under arrest and put him in his automobile and transported him to the Stanley jail, where he said he was threatened by Jones.

The prosecution, headed by I. R. Dovel, commonwealth's attorney for Page County, denied that Jones had attempted to attack the former police chief with a knife.

The commonwealth presented only three witnesses today, one of them being Dr. J. H. Deyerle of Harrisonburg, who told the jury that he had seen Jones in the hospital and that death had been caused by a fractured skull.

Commonwealth's Attorney Dovel in his opening charge to the jury Monday, asked that a verdict of murder in the first degree be returned.

DAR Plans Drive To Acquire Home Of Patrick Henry

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—The Conservation Commission reported today that efforts may be made in the near future by the Virginia Daughters of the American Revolution, in cooperation with the Commonwealth, to acquire Red Hill, Patrick Henry's last home, in Charlotte County, for a public shrine.

Mrs. E. L. Sutherland of Lynchburg, former regent of the Blue Ridge Chapter, DAR, has arranged to confer Monday with William A. Wright, chairman of the commission, in regard to the project. She wrote Governor Darden last week that a suggestion that the DAR work toward obtaining the Henry home had been greeeted with enthusiasm.

Governor Darden forwarded Mrs. Sutherland's letter to Wright, commenting that "this is a matter in which we ought to take interest and help out if possible." While the State has no money available for such purpose, the Governor said it might be possible to work with the Virginia DAR in some kind of a drive for funds.

W. Va. Marine Likes A Blackjack for Jap Extermination

Fairmont, W. Va., May 29 (AP).—When Pfc. Lawrence Woodward, with the Marines on Bougainville, comes to close grips with the enemy he likes to dispose of him with as little noise as possible, the fighter's father, J. F. Woodward, said today.

Some time ago, as Woodward related the story, his son wrote for a hunting knife and when it was sent to him word came back that it hadn't proved exactly to his liking because the enemy "always squealed when struck."

Would the folks please send him a blackjack?

Woodward senior bargained for one at police headquarters, and a letter from Bougainville indicated today this weapon is working out quite satisfactorily in hand-to-hand encounters.

Wrote Private First Class Woodward:

"One pop, no squeal, no Jap."

General Rains Still Needed By Va. Crops

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—Although the need for rain was cited, crops generally were reported to be in good condition, according to the latest bulletin on Virginia weather and crops, issued jointly today by the United States and the Virginia Departments of Agriculture.

In all except the northern counties, where the crop is just coming on, farmers are harvesting or have harvested one of the best alfalfa crops in years, it was announced. Orchard grass, crimson clover and grain hay mixtures have also yielded well.

Wheat Growth Too Heavy

"Pastures are in excellent condition in most areas, but would be further improved by general rains. In most sections of the State small grains continue to show good to excellent prospects. Some reports indicate wheat growth is almost too rank.

Apples and peaches are "setting on well" in all areas, the report said. "Strawberry harvest is now general, but unless rain comes soon to the important Norfolk and Eastern Shore sections, the season will soon be ended."

While the continued dry weather over most of the State for the week ending May 20 favored hay making and the planting of crops where soils were not too dry, further damage was caused to potatoes, snap beans, strawberries and tomatoes. Rains over the weekend brought temporary relief to central and southern counties, but none was received in the area around Norfolk and the Eastern Shore, "where it was most needed."

More Rains Needed

In the dry areas, early Irish potatoes were blooming and cabbage was heading. "These are critical stages for these crops, when soil moisture is needed in ample amounts. Most parts of the valley, the western counties and southwest Virginia have enough moisture for present needs, but even there rain would help spring oats, pasture and hay."

There was some indication, it was stated, that the blue mold which has been threatening tobacco crops was diminishing.

Sheep shearing was reported to be general in the State.

The labor shortage continued a serious handicap to farmers, and reports indicated that in areas where large construction jobs were located, the farm labor shortage is especially acute, with no day labor available and many regular monthly hands quitting the farm for the higher wages offered.

Drought Reported In Maryland Area

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—The U. S. Weather Bureau announced today that surface soil throughout Maryland and Delaware had become too dry for grasses, pastures and truck crops due to recent continued warm, dry weather.

The two States experienced their second successive week without rain and their third successive warm week in the seven days ended May 23, the Bureau reported in its survey of the weather and crop situation.

However, conditions were described as favorable for plowing, planting and other field work.

Court Restores Citizenship To German Paper Publisher

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—The United States citizenship obtained by German-born Albert Orth, 71, and his wife, Anna, in Charleston, S. C., 44 years ago will be retained under an opinion today by the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals reversing a lower court order.

Orth appealed from the Federal District Court at Charleston, which ordered denaturalization after a hearing on charges that Orth fraudulently concealed mental allegiance to Germany when he made his oath of allegiance to this country. His wife automatically became a citizen by having married Orth when he received his final papers in 1900.

No Misconduct Shown

The higher court held that "American citizenship is a priceless possession," and "more than mere speculation or wartime suspicion should be required to annul these rights."

Counsel for the Government, the opinion said, "adduced no evidence of misconduct on the part of Orth prior to his naturalization."

In opposition to the Government's contentions, it added, "It was shown that Orth made many statements indicating fidelity to the United States. He purchased Liberty Bonds during the last war and urged others to do so. He has shown no discrimination against the Jewish race.

"Nine months before the institution of these proceedings, he offered his entire plant to the United States Government free of any charge . . . He was more than once heard to call the present regime in Germany 'damned gangsters.'"

The opinion said it is the Government's burden to prove fraud and "we find here no 'clear, unequivocal and convincing evidence' by which the Government has sustained its burden."

Editorials Cited

Editorials in the German newspaper published by Orth in Charleston prior to the entry of this country into the first World War do not show that Orth held a mental reservation of attachment for Germany, the opinion said.

"While they show an interest in the cause of Germany as against England and a desire that this country stay out of the war, they cannot be said to show a lack of loyalty to this country, much less a lack of loyalty and good faith as of the time the naturalization oath was taken 16 years before."

FWA Approves Water Project At Hagerstown

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—The regional office of the Federal Works Agency announced approval today of plans for the construction of a booster pumping station having a capacity of 10 million gallons at Hagerstown, Md.

City Engineer C. W. Stump, jr., of Hagerstown, said bids for the proect probably would be taken within the next two weeks. Cost of the work is estimated at $22,285. The Federal Government will supply $11,192.50 under a grant approved Monday by the President.

The pumping station, authorized to aid Hagerstown in supplying water to aireraft plants and other war industries in the vicinity, will be located halfway between the filtration plant on the bank of the Potomac River, near Williamsport, Md., and Hagerstown.

Regional Director C. L. Vickers of the Federal Works Agency also announced that today the FWA would concur in the award of a contract by the Anne Arundel County Board of Education for construction of a 12-classroom school building at Brooklyn Park, Md.

Morrow Bros., Inc., Baltimore, was low bidder among 18 contractors with a figure of $106,000. The school is to be erected opposite the present Brooklyn Park School. The Federal Government will finance $85,000 of the estimated $170,000 cost of the construction and equipping of the new building.

Rise in State Traffic Toll Stirs Warning

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission reported today that 36 persons were killed in State traffic accidents during April, an increase of 14 over the 1943 month, and declared that "the public is relaxing in its safety efforts."

There has been a steady increase in accidents, deaths and injuries, the commission said, asserting that the "35-mile-per-hour speed limit is not being conscientiously observed."

Excessive Speed Hit

"The gasoline and tire situation is still acute and . . . excessive speeds, with quick starts and stops, and unnecessary driving create numerous accident hazards in addition to intensifying the acute shortage of these vital materials," the commission said.

Calvert, Kent and Queen Annes Counties were the only ones among Maryland's 23 which had neither deaths nor injuries from highway mishaps during April. There were no deaths, but some injuries, in Carroll, Charles, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Somerset and Worcester Counties.

There were 1016 accidents in the State during the month, 724 of them in Baltimore City and 292 in the counties. Eight persons were killed and 327 injured in Baltimore and 28 killed and 184 injured in the counties.

The figures for April brought the totals for the first four months of this year to 117 deaths and 2143 injured in 4318 reported accidents, an increase of approximately 12 per cent over the figures for the like period of last year, when there were 107 deahts.

Harrison Granted Another 30-Day Stay

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—Governor Darden granted another 30-day reprieve yesterday to Walter Paul Harrison, former streetcar conductor, scheduled to die Friday in the electric chair at the State Penitentiary for the murder of his wife, Mary Estelle Harrison, who, with their four sons, was drowned in an abandoned quarry on the Petersburg pike last summer.

The Governor's action was based on the plea of Harrison's attorneys, Leith Bremner and A. Clair Sager, for additional time to permit the Supreme Court of Appeals to pass upon an appeal from the Hustings Court judgment condemning Harrison.

Pittsburgh Comes Up With New Prize Offer; Amusement Gossip

AS AN INTRODUCTORY to the announcement of a $500 award at which embryonic playwrights are urged to shoot, we quote its sponsor's richly embroidered summary of what lies at the bottom of the offer:

HELEN HAYES

"To that fabulous invalid, the American Theater, the Pittsburgh Drama League's First Nation-Wide Playwriting Contest, held in 1943, brought the life-surging plasma of a new play by a new author."

Heartened by this happy result of the 1943 competition, the Pittsburgh Drama League is setting up it Second $500 Drama Award in a contest open to all playwrights on the home and war fronts of 1944.

The object of this contest, the P. D. L., goes on to say, is the same as last year's, i. e., to discover a play of whatever type that will advance American and international ideals of democracy, tolerance, justice and courage.

To qualify for consideration, the entry must be a full-length manuscript play, which has never been professionally produced, and which develops a premise consonant with the object of this contest in terms of human drama or comedy. Plays in any style or category are eligible; they may be written singly or in collaboration, in prose or poetry.

Entries must be postmarked not later than November 1, 1944. Any author, or collaborating team, may submit as many manuscripts as desired, but the author's name must not appear anywhere on the script.

There are a considerable number of other rules and stipulations, too voluminous to reproduce here, concerning which full information may be obtained by addressing the Pittsburgh Drama League, Ferdinand Fillion, president, 5321 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh 6, Pa. Applications for entry in the contest may be secured from the same address.

If it is of any further interest—and it should be to all would-be dramatists hiding their lights under a lot of bushels and their scripts in a mountain of attic trunks—after the Drama League's Pittsburgh jury has made a preliminary selection of likely scripts, the final award to the winner will be made on the judgment of Helen Hayes, Alfred Lunt and Clayton Hamilton, former chairman of the Pulitzer Prize Committee. So now you know.

Washington theatergoers whose memories go 'way back to day before yesterday, now can begin tuning up their congratulatory vocabularies against the coming of the Shuberts' production of Agatha Christie's new mystery play, "Ten Little Indians," to the National a fortnight hence. A tip just to hand brings word that at midnight on May 30, Estelle Winwood, a prominent member of the cast, will be married to Robert D. Henderson, well-known theatrical director, in New York. Miss Winwood, one of the theater's veteran actresses of distinction, was important in "Ladies in Retirement" and appeared with the Lunts in "The Pirate." She also was in Blithe Spirit" on tour. Mr. Henderson presently is directing a repertory company in Toronto.

Service for the Services

Following more or less in the footsteps of Alfred de Liagre, jr., and "The Voice of the Turtle," Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Lagner announce that with the cooperation of Richard Rodgers, composer; Oscar Hammerstein 2d, author of the book and lyrics; Lynn Riggs, who wrote the original play, "Green Grow the Lilacs;" Rouben Mamoulian, the director, and the Messrs. Shubert, operators of the St. James Theater, in New York—whew! time out for breath—the Theater Guild will give, special weekly matinees of "Oklahoma" for the men and women of the armed forces.

These matinees will begin on Tuesday, June 6, and will continue on successive Tuesday afternoons, except in holiday weeks. Not free, gratis for nothing, you understand, but at sharply reduced prices. Nice gesture, even at that.

Katharine Cornell, currently packing the National in Dodie Smith's sailny comedy-romance, "Lovers and Friends," will be at the Stage Door Canteen after tomorrow night's performance to serve at the food bar—just as she did in her only screen appearance in "Stage Door Canteen"—and cut the birthday cake. In case you haven't heard, there is a birthday cake at the Canteen every night in the week. Each night, all soldiers whose birthday it is are requested to make themselves known. They take the cake!

Which, somehow, impertinently reminds me of the late Eddie Foy and the time—on the stage, of course—he invited a beautiful blonde to join him in a bottle of wine on his birthday. "I'd love to," she eagerly accepted, "when is your birthday?" To which Mr. Foy replied archly, "Any day that suits you!"

Ring In 'Tomorrow'!

Hollywood, Calif., May 24.—Ring Lardner having finished the screen play of "Tomorrow the World," now turns 'round to do the musical "World of Tomorrow." Gosh! "Tomorrow" is getting to be as bad as "That Night" in the old silents. Ring's brother, John, war correspondent who wrote the story about behavior of our Hollywood actors while overseas, is due for a visit here soon. . . . Maj. Clark Gable returns tomorrow to finish the picture he showed Gen. H. H. Arnold in Washington. That print was in black and white. One you'll see will be in color. The general's mighty pleased with it. . . . Abbott and Costello's next for Universal (their 13th) will be "In Society"—not "The Naughty '90s." They'll play misfit plumbers who are called in to repair the plumbing at a swank hotel. Naturally, they leave it a shambles. . . . Bill Ihnen, who designed "Woodrow Wilson" sets, then resigned from Twentieth-Century, has signed as production designer and head of the art department for William Goetz and International.

CLARK GABLE

Fun's Fun—But

Brian Aherne doesn't mind that Columbia suspended him because he wouldn't play a dull picture, but he isn't pleased that it demands 50 per cent of his radio salary. All he wants really is a new tractor. . . . Before Bob Hope goes to the South Pacific he'll visit Ed Gardner in the "Duffy's Tavern" picture. . . . Once a week Ed Wynn went to see his son, Keenan, in "See Here, Private Hargrove" at the Astor Theater. . . . Some of the best gags in "Road to Utopia" were thought up by H Allen Smith. He's bought a few shares of Paramount stock, and wrote Buddy de Sylva how he wants the studio run from now on. His ideas, while not printable, are mighty funny. In spite of all the rumors, De Sylva is not leaving Paramount. He has a year and a half to go. . . . Errol Flynn is backing a company for the manufacture of penicillin. When Errol asked to see Jack Barrymore's "Don Juan," a Warner producer said, "You're in for a big laugh." Errol said, "If I'm half as good, I'll be happy." . . . My, My!. C. B. De Mille a judge of beauty with Amos and Andy. It's an old story to him. He's been doing that all his life.

Maybe He's Right

Note from Mayor Rodgers of Dallas, Tex., claiming talented kids from there weren't being done right by. He suggests that Linda Darnell in "Summer Storm" be billed as Linda Darnell of Texas. . . . Alice (who is no longer Mrs. John Frederick) Harjes, is Margaret Lindsay's house guest here. . . . Betty Field, complete with hubby Elmer Rice, two babies, and dozens of milk bottles, has settled cozily in Dwight Taylor's house for a long stay. . . . Kenneth MacGowan, in six weeks at Paramount, found four stories he liked. First one he chose, a ghost story, was told him accidentally by the author, who was really trying to sell him another story. . . . If Veronica Lake goes to R. K. O. for "Duel in the Sun," I hope she'll be more cooperative than during her last Paramount epic.

Nice Folks

The Robert Taylors bought the land in Beverly Hills where Will Rogers' first home stood. Their neighbors will be Mrs. Frances Meighan on one side and the Oscar Lawlers on the other . . . Deborah Lewin, who's done a fine job selling insurance for ten years and brought up two sons, now in the service, came in to call on her birthday. She should be in the beauty business. She's younger looking today than ten years ago. Hard work combined with a good skin does it. . . . Why Edward Everett Horton remains a bachelor: In "San Diego, I Love You," he fathers four children. Kids ate four chickens first day. . . . Joe Schrank, who completed screen play of "The Clock" with Robert Nathan, is off to New York to confer with Bill Gaxton and write "Sweet Lavender," which Gaxton and Victor Moore may do next fall on Broadway. . . . Capt. Gene Raymond met Pfc. Gene Raymond at his house. When Jeannette MacDonald toured hospitals, she ran across Pfc. Raymond, said when he came to Hollywood she wanted him to meet her husband. Here he is. . . . Perry Como, in his first appearance, gave imitations of Georgie Jessel and Al Jolson. Now he's been hired as an actor and singer in "Kitten on the Keys" by Jessel. . . . Now that Jinx Falkenburg goes into a sarong, how about doing same thing to Rochelle Judson?

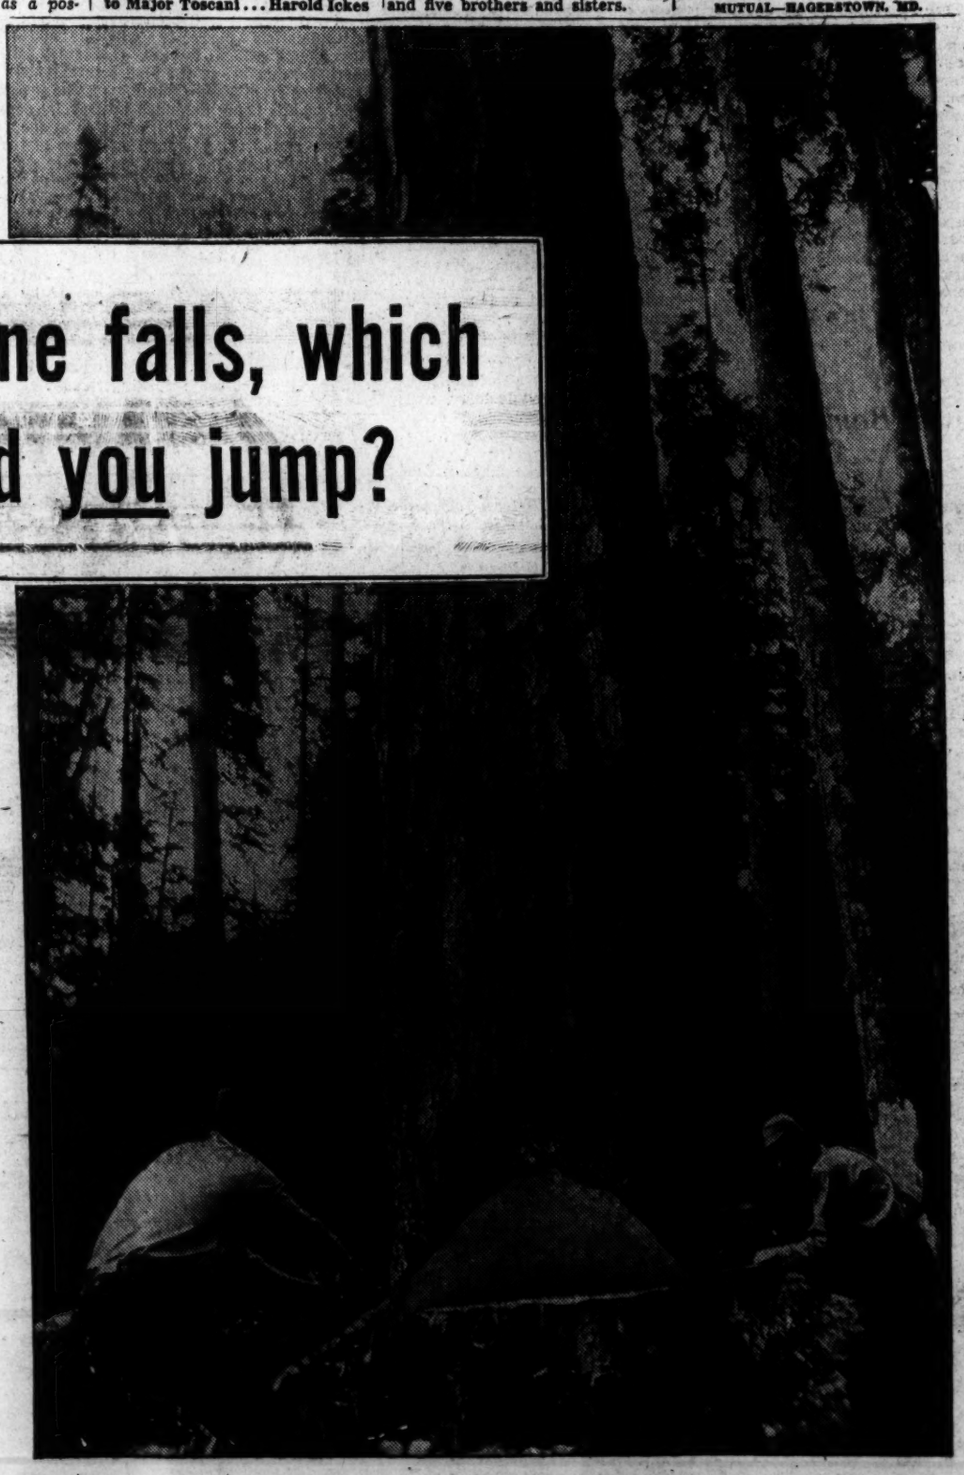
When this one falls, which way would you jump?



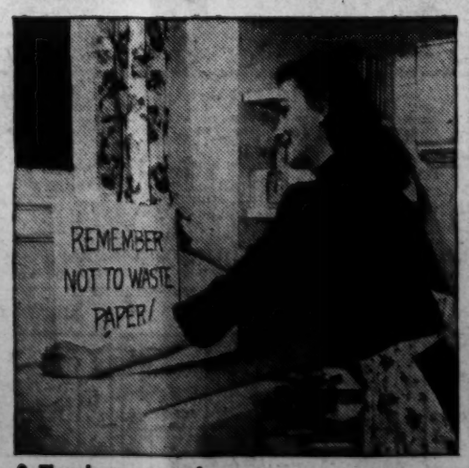
1. In felling a tree this big, your very life depends on knowing precisely where and when the tree will fall. Like most lumbering operations, it requires a unique combination of skill and strength; it's a type of work the average man simply can't learn to do overnight.

Since the war started, some 23,000 skilled lumbermen from the forests of Canada and the U.S. have gone into war plants or the armed forces, and it's virtually impossible to replace them. The lumbermen still in the forests are working overtime, and farmers have increased their timber cutting—yet we haven't the manpower to get the timber to the mills.

More than two-thirds of our wood supply goes into vital building needs, including ships, military roads, barracks, etc. The average person can't do much to conserve that lumber. But the other third goes into wood pulp, from which paper is made—and there is a great deal we all can do to conserve paper. The Government urges business organizations and individuals to do their utmost to help relieve the shortage.

LIFE

2. The need for your cooperation is urgent. While the supply of paper dwindled, demand skyrocketed. The armed forces use a staggering amount of paper products. More than 700,000 items must be paper-wrapped or boxed for shipment to the Army. Other big military uses of paper are for communications, manuals, V-mail, ammunition. Each 500-pound bomb, for example, takes 12 pounds of paper.



3. Though you may not realize it, one of our biggest paper users is the American home. Thus private citizens can go a long way toward helping relieve the paper shortage. Uncle Sam urges us all to accept unwrapped packages when shopping, to do our level best never to waste a single piece of stationery, tissue, towels, or napkins, and to avoid consuming paper for home uses whenever it's possible to do so.

4. Actually, all U.S. magazines use just 4% of our paper supply, but they afford two ways you can help lessen the shortage. First, share your magazines with friends. (Each week millions are unable to find copies of LIFE on sale, because for two years LIFE has saved paper by limiting the number it prints.) Second, turn in all old magazines and newspapers for salvage. Old paper can be used to make new paper!

Speaker Extols Confederates' Sense of Duty

The devotion to duty shown by the Confederate soldier in the ranks during the War Between the States was emphasized by the Rev. Dr. A. P. Williams, principal speaker at Confederate Memorial Day exercises in Alexandria last night.

Dr. Williams who is district superintendent of the Methodist Church in the Alexandria area addressed an assembly at 6 p. m. at Lee Camp Hall, 806 Prince st., during the program sponsored by the Robert E. Lee Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the Mary Custis Lee—Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"Obeyed Orders to Letter"

"The Confederate soldiers made up an army of men who obeyed orders to the letter and endured hardships almost beyond mention. There were few deserters in that army, and it is a credit to Alexandria that of the 750 volunteers, officers and men, who left the corner of Washington and Prince sts. to join the Confederate forces, nearly every one returned with a record of distinguished service," Dr. Williams declared.

"Though defeated, the men of the Confederacy still won in the finest sense of the word because they were fighting for ideals which they considered apart from the Union. We know today that those ideals could not be realized apart from a united Nation, and if those men were living, they would agree," the speaker continued.

Declaring that the highest ideals of the Confederacy must prevail in the victory to be won in the present conflict, Dr. Williams pointed out that in Alexandria, which was the great city of that time, the social and cultural life of the people was never suppressed despite the years of privation.

R. Samuel Luckett Presides

The commander of the Confederates' post in Alexandria, R. Samuel Luckett, presided at the ceremonies in the hall which were followed by a procession to Christ Church Cemetery where flowers were laid on the mound in which 34 Confederate soldiers who died in Federal hospitals in Alexandria are buried.

The Confederate soldier's statue in the center of Washington st. was decorated with roses and Confederate flags for the day by Mrs. Harry D. Kirk and Miss Cora Duffey. Flower arrangements at the assembly hall were provided by Mrs. Mark L. Price and Mrs. George Roop, also of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mrs. Wallace Burgoyne, chairman, said they will fill assignments at the Washington National Airport serving food to pilots of the Air Transport Command and will also serve workers and donors with the mobile blood donor unit at both the airport and Grace Episcopal Church parish hall in Alexandria.

Full corps members who have completed both the canteen and nutrition courses are: Mrs. Mary Howland, Mrs. Dan C. McNaughton, Mrs. Ned McDaniel, Mrs. E. W. Sarven, Mrs. Laurance M. Thompson and Mrs. Donald Woodyard.

The nutrition course in progress at the VPS Auditorium, 117 South Washington st., is open to all interested persons. Instruction by Miss Ida Lansden, home service director of the VPS, covers 20 hours and classes are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a. m. to noon.

Mrs. Joseph Battley, chairman of nutrition for the Alexandria Red Cross Chapter, said that Miss Lansden, a member of the Virginia State Committee for the Conservation and Preservation of Foods, and her 10 assistants have given instruction in nutrition and food conservation to over 27,000 women throughout Virginia.

157,100 More Electric Irons In Prospect

The War Production Board announced Tuesday that a limited number of electric irons, wire-frame lamp shades, and possibly shotguns, rifles, pistols and revolvers will be manufactured for civilians.

Approximately 157,100 more electric irons will be produced by seven manufacturers in labor tight areas, the WPB said, to bring the total to 926,438 for this year. The goal is two million.

The proposal for limited production of shotguns, rifles, pistols and revolvers, which has been forbidden since February, 1942, has been approved by the WPB Small Arms Industry Advisory Committee. WPB approval is still necessary.

These arms are needed, officials said, in order to protect over 51 million sheep and 82 million cattle from covotes and other predatory animals. Ducks, pheasants, rabbits and other crop-uestroying animals and birds must be controlled in order to obtain maximum agricultural output.

Annapolis, Md., May 24 (AP).—The rabies quarantine in Anne Arundel County, which was scheduled to expire June 15, will be extended for another three months, Dr. William J. French, county health director, reported today.

Dr. French explained that although owners had shown better cooperation by keeping dogs tied up and having them inoculated against the disease, there had been an increase in the number of cases reported.

Since the first of the year, there had been a total of 32 cases of rabies reported, 17 occurring in April, 8 in May and the other seven occurred in the preceding three months, the health department record showed.

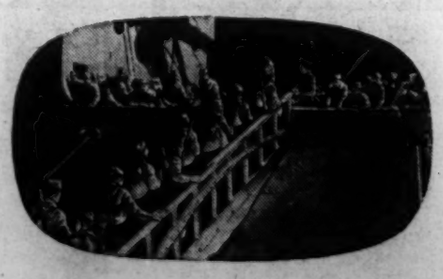
ON THEIR WAY



Shades are drawn. The landscape is blotted out ... there's just the hum of the speeding train.

These boys know what it means—the troop train is approaching the troop ships.

Some draw a deep breath. A soldier fumbles for a letter. Another wonders if he can make a last telephone call. Another draws out a crumpled photograph.

No, travelers don't see this—but the trainmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad do, daily. And more so than ever now. As the swelling tide of American youth—fine and fit—streams overseas...

Of course, it takes a lot of equipment for these troop movements—but with what remains we are doing our best to serve all essential travelers... efficiently, courteously.

FCC Workers' Fight Sets 30-Day Notice Precedent

A fight has been won by employes in the Federal Communications Commission which promises to have an important bearing on the lay-off policy of other Government agencies. FCC must discharge 500 employes in its Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service and its Radio Intelligence Division by June 30. The 1945 budget was cut sharply. Originally the 500 to be axed were given 10 days' notice. Civil Service rules "suggest" 30 days notice so the employes, through the United Federal Workers of America, appealed to the Commission. The Commission reaffirmed its recommendation but it couldn't make the agency follow it. The employes got together and had prepared a petition to the seven FCC members, when the order came through for 30 days' notice. With this precedent, other demobilized agencies probably will follow suit and give employes 30 days' active duty notice.

HOT POTATO: The Criminal Division of the Justice Department has one on its hands. It is investigating charges that a prominent GOP member of Congress shook down war contractors in his district for heavy "contributions." It's trying to decide whether to prosecute the case . . . WPB: William Yandell Elliott is chief of the Office of Civilian Requirement in the War Production Board. He has been promised the job—and was doing it in fact—for a couple of months before he was formally named to the post. During this uncertain period he received a letter from a friend who addressed him as "common law director of the OCR." . . . The oldest person who has a Social Security card in the Fourth District, that includes Washington, is 106-year-old William E. Davis, a Charleston, W. Va., diswasher. Davis is a former slave and he looks forward to the end of the war when he can collect his pension.

The Legislative Deferment Committee has acted finally and now draft-eligible Capitol Hill employes can be accorded the same treatment as other Government workers and men in private industry. The effect of the committee's action will be to give automatic deferments to men between 30 and 38. However, members of Congress must ask the Deferment Committee for deferment of their own employes. Meantime, occupational reclassification forms are being distributed to the deferment committees within each Federal agency. Men between 30 and 38 must fill out this form before they can be reclassified by local boards. Very few Government men within these ages are expected to be called for service.

The Fish and Wildlife Service yesterday advised boys with BB guns that it was all right to shoot the English sparrow but they could be fined up to $500 and sent to jail for six months if they killed any of the birds protected under Federal treaties and acts. . . . Yes, Memorial Day will be a regular work day in the Federal service. Only postal employes will be given compensatory time off if they work, and some of the per diem people will collect penalty wages. The white collar people get nothing. . . . Senator Byrd reports total Federal employment at 3,286,015 on April 1. His figure includes 288,563 War Department civilians who are working outside the country. . . . A few tickets are available to the Government Girl dance which will be held tomorrow night at the Press Club. Tickets include refreshments. Call National 8124 for reservations.

VETERANS: The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday placed its unanimous approval on the Starnes-Scrugham bill which will make it easier for veterans to get jobs in the Federal service. It knocked out the LaFollette amendment which would extend preference to wives and husbands of service people. An amendment was added which denied veterans preference for jobs in the legislative and judicial branches, and voted down an amendment which would have required veterans to get a passing grade on a Civil Service exam before the preference points were added. This latter provision was suggested by the Civil Service Reform League and the League of Women Voters. The bill will be called up soon in the Senate, and Chairman Downey expects it to be passed unanimously.

Employes in the radio division of Navy's Bureau of Ships will be told again of their vacation and annual leave rights which will be precisely the policies laid down by the White House.. An order restricting leave for certain employes was unauthorized and it will be withdrawn . . . In War's Surgeon General's Office, cash awards for valuable suggestions have been made to Phyliss D. Campbell, $25; Ida Carsner, $50, and Cecilia Osborn, $50 . . . Roger Merrill has transferred from the War Manpower press office to Solid Fuels . . . And the Senate Appropriations Committee killed the amendment to the legislative appropriation bill which would have paid Government Printing Office employes for the annual leave of which they were unjustly deprived during the economy days of 1933. . . . The hearing in District Court on the validity of the Hatch Act has been postponed indefinitely. It was scheduled for today.

Garden Plots Available at Silver Spring

Victory garden plots, plowed and fertilized by county funds under the Montgomery County victory garden program, are still available in the Silver Spring area, Mrs. Ernest F. Klinge, executive secretary for the eastern suburban district announced yesterday.

Most of the plots are located on Georgia ave. extended near Forest Glen rd., Mrs. Klinge said. Nonresidents of the county are eligible to utilize the plots.

Mrs. Klinge said that canning centers will be operated again this summer in the Takoma Park-Silver Spring area. Pressure cookers will be used at the centers and there will also be several for the circulating program outside of classes.

She urged enrollment of boys from 12 to 16 years in the Victory Garden Corps to help with garden chores. Boys will be paid by individuals according to their rating.

Further information concerning garden problems and the Corps may be obtained by calling Victory Garden headquarters 8634 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, at Shepherd 1554—ext. 44 or 28 from 9 o. m. until 3:30 p. m.

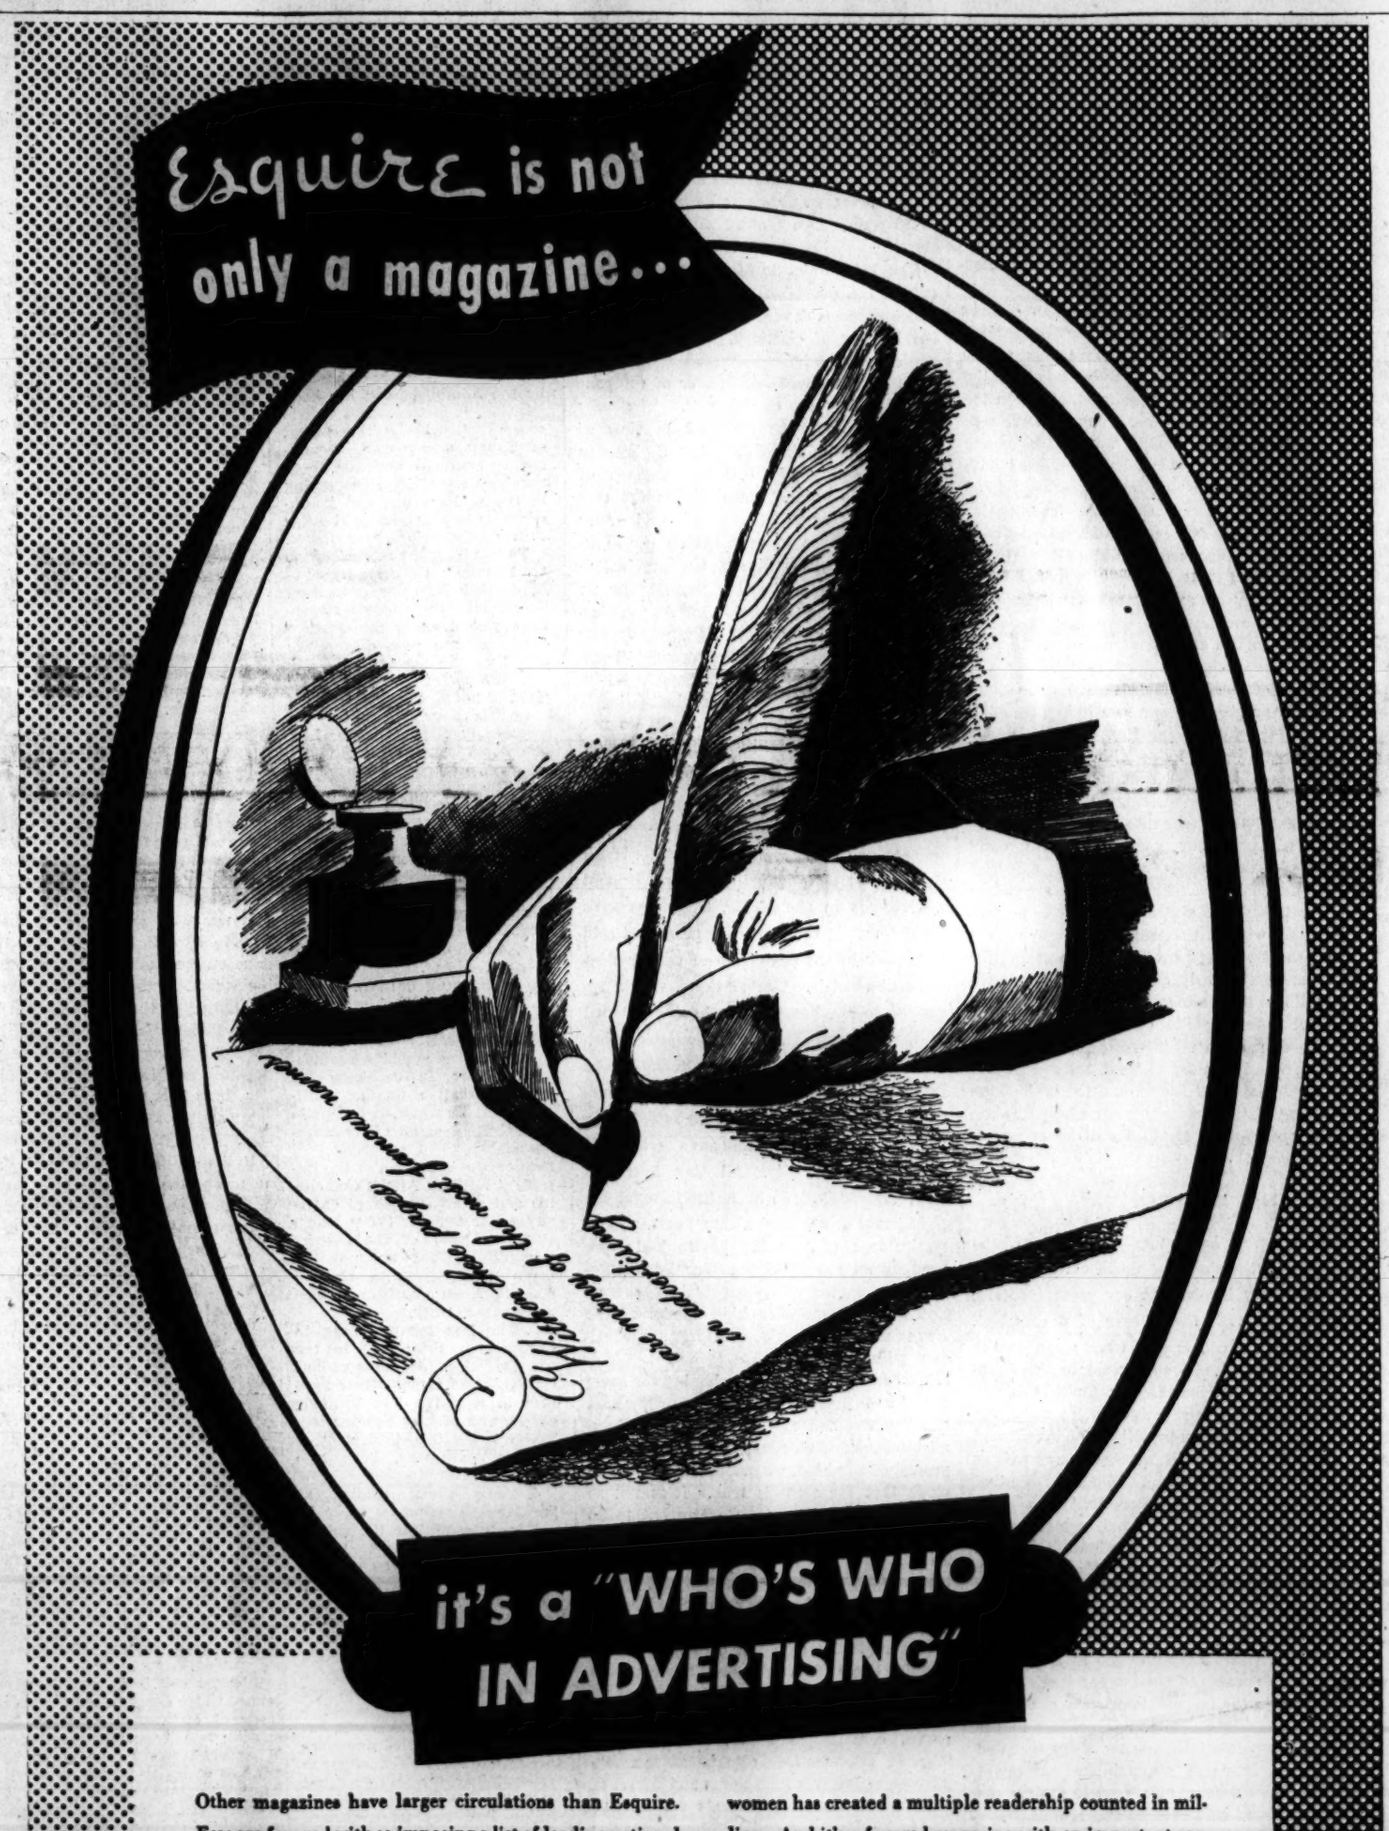
Bond Quota in Md. Set at 228 Million

Baltimore, May 24 (AP).—W. Bladen Lowndes, Maryland War Finance Committee chairman, announced today that the Free State's Fifth War Loan quota has been set at 228 million dollars, or 37 million dollars more than its Fourth War Loan goal.

Lowndes reported that all series E, F, and G Savings Bonds and series C Treasury Savings Notes bought from June 1 on will count in the Fifth War Loan quota. The campaign will open June 12 and continue through July 8.

The Fifth War Loan goal of 181 million dollars was well oversubscribed by Marylanders. The national quota for the Fifth War Bond Sales Drive has been set by the Treasury Department at 16 billion dollars.



Other magazines have larger circulations than Esquire. Few are favored with so imposing a list of leading national advertisers. Makers of quality merchandise whose names and products are known to nearly every American.

Ranking national advertisers use Esquire because it carries authority with the pace-setting portion of the American people. And because of the intensity of its consumer influence. Esquire's popularity with men and women has created a multiple readership counted in millions. And it's a favored magazine with an important segment of officers and men in the armed services.

The measure of a magazine is the influence it exerts. In this respect Esquire's specific gravity is high. Which explains, perhaps, why so many national advertisers regard Esquire as one of their soundest investments, now, and for post-war.

Esquire is not only a magazine... IT'S AN INSTITUTION

Closing In

The silence which Pacific Fleet headquarters has maintained up to now on the subject of the third raid on Marcus Island is understandable in view of the distance the task force had to travel to reach its target and the time that must elapse before it could return to its base. There is, however, no reason to doubt the Japanese report that another raid on Marcus has occurred, nor the likelihood that the raid was significant.

The first raid on Marcus occurred in March, 1942, at a time when Japan was winning victories everywhere. The enemy could dismiss that attack as little more than a flash in the pan. The second raid—in September, 1943—was a bird of a different color. By that time more than a year had passed since the Japanese advance had reached its high-water mark, and the ebbtide had set in. In fact, in that second raid an estimated 80 per cent of Japanese military installations on Marcus were destroyed. Thus, in view of our enormous growth in naval and air power in the Pacific, the third raid on Marcus must have been very damaging.

It means that the net is drawing closer around Japan, that our unchallenged fleet can roam almost at will up and down the vast reaches of the Pacific even to regions perilously close to Japan's home islands. Indeed, the Japanese communique, which thus far is the only indication that another raid on Marcus has taken place, suggests that our task force may have gone as far to the west as the Bonin Islands, which are only 600 miles from Japan, before turning around and joining in the attack on Marcus.

Bolivian Coup

The foreign relations which the State Department insists on maintaining with the American people are well illustrated in the case of Bolivia. Last week Secretary Hull was asked twice and Undersecretary Stettinius once about the Avra Warren mission. Both spokesmen were uncommunicative. The Post got the same brushoff when it asked its own questions. It therefore expressed its doubts as to what was going on, and immediately official lips came unsealed, and details of a brilliant diplomatic coup were given out. Eighty enemy agents or enemy sympathizers in La Paz who were on the State Department's proscribed list, it was said, had been rounded up. Not only had they been arrested; they had been sent to Panama on American Flying Fortresses, where they were awaiting internment in the United States. The department is entitled to commendation on this result of nonrecognition, though it would share the credit, of course, with its opposites in the Latin American capitals. It will remain a puzzle why, if this extraordinary step were taken before the questioning occurred last week, it was not reported to the American people. A light of such effulgence isn't usually kept under the diplomatic bushel.

However, that is a problem in organization at the State Department. The fact remains that the Axis swamp at La Paz appears to be in process of draining, and that is of great significance. It was the existence of it that called for the break in diplomatic relations with Bolivia last December. Our official position was then made very clear. All the forces which helped to set up the junta and which were present in the new government were known to this government. We had their names and affiliations down to the last detail. When they had been extirpated, the government would be recognized, but not before. The Warren mission seemed to us a response to an effort by the Bolivian government to persuade this Nation to reduce the payment required for recognition. For if the United States' stand remained the same, there was no need for a Warren mission. At any rate, the payment seems to be forthcoming, with or without Mr. Warren's help, and the way is thus paved for recognition.

The success is the more noteworthy because the cleanup means that a wedge has been driven between Bolivia and pro-Fascist Argentina. As Mr. Stettinius said last Friday, the two problems are now separate. Nonrecognition has been made to work in Bolivia, and it must be made to work in Argentina. In that country we are reaping the bad fruit of our lack of policy in the Spanish revolution, as a result of which Falangism came into the saddle, and prepared itself for export to this continent. One day this Nation will have to bear down on both the source in Europe and the outcropping in America. The longer we delay, the worse the job will be. This country cannot afford to second the buttering of Franco which Mr. Churchill administered yesterday. Franco is an American problem, and only at our peril can we think of him in any other terms.

War Aims

In the Senate on Tuesday, Senator Styles Bridges delivered a fervently eloquent plea to the President for a reaffirmation of America's war aims. For all his eloquence, however, the Senator betrayed a high degree of inner confusion—a confusion which, perhaps, mirrors the state of mind of millions of his countrymen. He spoke in no narrow spirit of partisanship; indeed, the whole tone of his address, in which he apostrophized Mr. Roosevelt, was one of respect, sincerity and exhortation. There can be no question that his misgivings about the trend of our foreign policy are genuine and are shared by many thoughtful Americans. Yet it seems to us that they confuse substance with shadow, the practicable with the ideal, the attainable with the ultimate.

Senator Bridges, like so many of us, is impatient for the millennium. And the achievement of anything less, he is inclined to feel, would be incommensurate with the frightful sacrifices of this war. "We have not gone to war," he said, "merely to defeat Hitler, nor to win a test of strength by force of arms. Surely there must be something above and beyond all this for which and toward which we are striving." All of us feel this. And all of us, like Senator Bridges, have been dismayed at times by the hesitations, the compromises, the temporizing which mar our approach to the high goals we have espoused. The Senator is alarmed, in particular, over the apparent contradiction between our championship of democracy and our partnership with Communist Russia. Communism, like Fascism, he reminds the President, is a form of dictatorship. And the American people, he asserts, "are justly apprehensive of the policies and practices which such a way of life provides for securing a just and peaceful settlement of international problems and disputes".

Well, what attitude would Senator Bridges have us adopt toward the Soviet Union? We are allied with that nation because of the indisputable fact that its defense is essential to the defense of the United States. In the course of the past three years we have sent nearly five billion dollars worth of lend-lease aid to Russia. And it has been used with eminently gratifying effectiveness against our common enemy, Germany. Yet Senator Bridges cavils at a rumor that we may have transferred one cruiser out of the United States Navy to this Alley! If Russia could use our cruisers as effectively as she has used the 8800 airplanes we have sent to her, it would be the essence of sound strategy to put some of them at her disposal.

Since we cannot mold the government of Russia precisely to our own liking, we shall have to adjust to the fact of its existence and find a way of living with it in peace and harmony. Since we cannot have our own way absolutely in the reconstruction of Europe, we shall have to take into account reasonably the wishes of our partners in victory and achieve settlements which are mutually satisfactory. Security and peace are not to be attained in a single bound nor to be purchased with a single payment. We shall gain and preserve them only by working for them continuously and constructively. We shall lose them altogether if we permit superficial differences to divide us from those whose fundamental interests are akin to our own. And in this, at least, we are at one with Britain and Russia and the rest of the United Nations, that security and peace are the prerequisite conditions of all our postwar hopes.

Preparedness

One agency in the Capital is aware as is no other of the shocking waste of time, effort and money involved in our present service setup. That is the Bureau of the Budget. Some of its conclusions were given to the Woodrum Committee last week by the director, Harold D. Smith. Mr. Smith told the committee that appropriations are still made to the statutory subdivisions of Army and Navy so that there is intra-service as well as interservice separatism. "On even a small Army post," said the director, "the civilian employes may be paid from as many as 12 funds." The mentality exhibited by Mr. Artemus L. Gates regards this gross inefficiency as the price we have to pay for government. He is, therefore, for laissez faire But the taxpayer will be relieved to know that Mr. Gates finds no echo in Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith wants to see the services start to work upon the internal improvement of their own departments. What is equally to the point, he pleads for a merger of the War and Navy Departments into a single Department of National Defense "if we are to achieve the maximum of effectiveness and economy".

Mr. Smith is the third witness in a row to urge amalgamation. The others were Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, and Admiral H. E. Yarnell. But Mr. Smith shows in detail what could be done now in consolidating functions without interfering with the conduct of the war. He would enact such consolidation into law, as well as the principle of all-in amalgamation. We hope the Woodrum Committee will recommend such a course of action, preferably in an interim report. Certainly, if the problem is shelved till the war is over, there will be the maximum of confusion. Mr. Smith indicates the situation with which we shall be confronted. "The kind of military establishment that we have after the war—that is, its composition in types of units, its strength, the number and location and character of bases—will derive out of the planning that is done before the end of the war. It is not possible to separate postwar military policy from the planning that is going on right now. Unless the services are given a framework within which to formulate their plans, there is bound to arise a rivalry between the services each endeavoring to enhance its relative importance within the postwar establishment. The President and the Congress will be presented two programs and two budgets based on different concepts of mission and of function, and the task of creating out of these programs a single unified establishment will fall to civilian legislators and administrators instead of to the combined professional military leadership of the Nation." In other words, the preparedness program after this war would degenerate into the same kind of unpreparedness in which the country found itself in 1941.

Ward Inquiry

The testimony of Gerard Reilly of the NLRB strengthens our view that the governmental machinery for the settlement of disputes such as that arising between the Montgomery Ward management and its employes is greatly in need of overhaul. Mr. Reilly's testimony emphasizes the necessity of resolving possible conflicts between the orders issued by the WLB and the provisions of the Wagner Act. He acknowledges that the regulations of the NLRB do not permit employers to petition for elections to determine questions of union representation except in case of jurisdictional disputes. He therefore urges a change in NLRB rules to permit employers to petition for a collective bargaining election within five days after a case has been certified to the WLB. Had such a rule been in force before the Montgomery Ward case got to a crisis, a settlement might have been obtained without Government seizure of the property. Because of defects of this kind in existing NLRB regulations, Mr. Reilly explains, a situation might arise that would bring employers who wish to obey WLB orders into conflict with the Wagner Act.

The WLB order to Montgomery Ward to extend the provisions of the union maintenance agreement with its employes pending the holding of elections, which was disregarded, was the immediate cause of the strike and the subsequent taking over of company property by the Government. The very least that could be expected in view of this outcome of the dispute is a decision as to the legality of WLB maintenance of membership order. Since the Montgomery Ward union agreed to waive rights under the maintenance of membership clause to discharge workers during the preelection period, the order became meaningless in that case for the time being. With the election going in favor of the union, negotiations with the company have been resumed. Meantime, the maintenance of membership clause is inoperative. In short, the legal situation is as uncertain as ever, and we still do not know where the authority of the NLRB ends and the power of WLB begins.

Satanic

Some of our readers will doubtless recall a disturbing little item that appeared about a week ago in one of Mr. Drew Pearson's feuilletons. It concerned a new gadget said to be now in the possession of certain Government officials. The machine, which, according to Mr. Pearson, has been developed in the General Electric laboratories, evidently belongs to the already numerous radar family. The person owning or controlling this device, Mr. Pearson said, is able to listen to any conversation anywhere within a radius of 3 miles. All that is necessary, apparently, is to beam the thing at the right house or apartment. Mr. Pearson cited an instance of how the device had been used by an official of the War Production Board to eavesdrop on a private conversation at the home of a high official of the Navy for the purpose of providing the President with the lowdown.

We confess we have been hoping for some denial of this story—something to show that Mr. Pearson had exaggerated or had been misinformed. But, since there has been no protest of any kind, we must reluctantly conclude that the story is true. It is not so much the willingness of Government to do a little keyhole listening when it suits their interest that shocks us. Snooping and spying are part of the accepted political mores, and have long been acknowledged to be among the privileges of government. What shocks us is the essential diabolism of the machine itself. If it can be used to violate the privacy of homes, it can also be used to violate the privacy of doctors' consulting rooms, confessional boxes, bedrooms, the intimate conversations of friends, the confidences of lovers, of husbands and wives, of parents and children. Private communication and indeed privacy itself (for, sooner or later, the thing will be equipped with a television attachment) will become impossible. And everything that has ever made human life beautiful or noble will atrophy and die.

THE INTERRUPTED YEAR

Foster's plow is still in the furrow,
Foster's harrow is by the gate
As if the job he was called away to
Was nothing to make the planting late.
Clods he left in the field unbroken
Time and the weather have trampled small;
Seeds he counted were never scattered
But measureless mustard rises tall.
The flash of yellow will save the fallow
With blossoms color for bird and bee;
What he started is not all wasted
In nature's interlocked husbandry.
An dthe point of a plowshare bears reminder
Whatever direction he may have gone
Here is the way he wants me going
Another year when the spring comes on.

Political Trends

WORD IS THAT the ivory towers of Capitol Hill are reverberating with the recent election news. The renomination of Senators Pepper and Hill, the retirement of three Dies Committee members, and now the defeat of conservative Senator Rufus Holman by liberal Republican Wayne Morse in the Oregon primaries, are all contributing to a wave of hard thinking by members of Congress who are coming up for reelection next fall.

Some Congressmen came back to Washington after the 1942 elections under the apparent impression that they had been given a mandate to oppose any and all Administration-sponsored measures, regardless of the war. They read the returns wrong. Any good analyst could have told them that the "conservative swing" was attributable mainly to the small vote—26 million, or little more than half as many as in 1940—which drew most heavily upon the more conservative elements of the population.

This presidential election year will be different. Millions of service men and war workers—the groups most favorable to the Administration—will be disfranchised, it is true. But nearly all those who can vote, will. And by next November 8 it may be apparent that the much-discussed "grass-roots revolt" is directed at least as much against the politicians on the Hill as against those in the executive branch of the Government.

Visible Signs

Signs of this have been visible for some months. Last summer an opinion poll showed that twice as many people would prefer to entrust the President (58 per cent) as would trust Congress (28 per cent) to make the peace terms to follow this war.

Resentment of the slipshod way in which Selective Service and rationing have been handled by the Administration has been growing, it is true. But this is counterbalanced by resentment of Congress' slowness in passing streamlined and simplified tax legislation, its sidestepping of the soldier vote, and its inclination to play politics at every turn on important war issues.

To win back the respect of the voting public, Congress needs to have a little New Deal of its own. Specifically, the following practices which make the average citizen squirm with displeasure might well be changed:

1. Filibustering. The other night I heard Senator Overton of Louisiana say on a radio forum program that the filibuster is a good thing because it is the only means of protection for a minority. The audience fairly howled its dissent.

Many who opposed repeal of the poll tax by congressional action bitterly resented the refusal of a minority of Senators to let the bill come to a vote. The undemocratic two-thirds requirement for a cloture on debate, which makes filibustering possible, has little support among thinking citizens.

2. The outdated seniority system of selecting congressional committee chairmen has resulted in an unprecedented concentration of power in the hands of a few conservative, old-line politicians. At its worst, it results in the selection of an extreme isolationist like Senator Robert Reynolds as chairman of the important Military Affairs Committee and of an anti-Negro demagogue like Senator ("The Man") Bilbo as head of the District Committee. Yet no move is made by Congress to organize committees on a basis other than partisan seniority.

3. The lust for patronage in Congress is disgusting to the average voter. Accounts of how Congressmen appoint their families to lucrative jobs in their offices, and of how Senator McKellar is out to gain control of TVA appointments, have also made a bad impression.

4. Congressional sniping at the Administration on every issue is distasteful to the voters, especially in wartime. Public opinion polls make it clear that the average citizen desires a nonpartisan formulation of foreign policy, at least during the war.

5. The two-thirds provision for Senate approval of treaties, which made it possible for a minority of Senators to prevent our entry into the League of Nations after the World War I, has been correctly labeled a menace to our postwar safety, although responsibility for this does not lie with the Senate itself. A Gallup Poll last week showed that 60 per cent of the people favored approval of peace terms after the war by the President and a simple majority of both houses of Congress; only 19 per cent were for approval by the President and two-thirds of the Senate, the present system.

General Distaste

General distaste for the antics of self-seeking politicians is strikingly shown in a recent poll by the National Opinion Research Center. Seven Americans out of ten said in effect, "I didn't raise my boy to be a politician." Among college-trained people, the proportion was eight out of ten.

Dishonesty, the spoils system, and insecurity of tenure are cited as reasons for this attitude. Half of the respondents opined that "It is almost impossible for a man to stay honest if he goes into politics."

A good housecleaning is clearly indicated if public confidence in our political life is to be built up.

Army And People

By Barnet Nover

D-Day And German Morale

ONE OF THE GREAT mysteries of our times is why it is that the German will to fight on has survived the tremendous buffeting it has received.

German morale has survived an endless succession of defeats in Russia, in North Africa, in Italy, in the Atlantic. It has survived bombing on a scale which makes the ordeal which the British went through in 1940 look like child's play. It has survived the destruction of every possibility of a German victory, the fading of every hope for a negotiated peace.

German morale has been sagging for a long time. It continues to sag. Few believe that it has been broken or is nearing the breaking point.

CERTAINLY there is not the slightest chance that German morale will break before D-Day, no matter how grim the outlook, no matter how fierce Allied bombing may be from this point forward.

Indeed, the proximity of D-Day, has given a temporary fillip to German morale. For the only hope the Germans have of avoiding defeat lies in the possibility that the invasion will fail.

This hope the Nazi propagandists have played up for all it is worth. Probably a great many Germans must be aware that it is, at best, a very faint hope, an exceedingly slight straw for them to lean on. But it is all the hope they have.

ONCE THE INVASION has begun the question of German morale will be primarily and preponderantly a question of the morale of the German army.

For years on end the Nazis and their precursors sedulously propagated the theory that it was the crack in German civilian morale in 1918 that made it impossible for Germany to fight on at that time. The German army, they said, was the victim of a "stab in the back."

Actually, what cracked first in Germany in 1918 was not civilian morale, but the morale of the high command, and particularly the morale of General Ludendorff. When, in August, 1918, a month after the failure of Ludendorff's fifth offensive on the Western Front, the Allies launched a great offensive of their own, the impact of that event on Ludendorff was demoralizing. He began bombarding the Kaiser with demands that Germany begin peace negotiations with the Allies.

Later, when peace negotiations were actually begun, Ludendorff changed his mind and counseled further military resistance. It was too late. For the appeal made by the German government to President Wilson revealed to the German people the precariousness of their military situation. From that moment their morale began to crack, and crack wide open.

THE NAZIS know that civilian morale in Germany can be taken care of as long as military morale holds firm. The German people are obedient by nature, easily cowed by authority, with no stomach or energy for revolution.

Germany today is the one country in Hitler's Europe that is almost completely without an underground. The possible leaders of that underground are dead or in exile or compromised by the regime. And despite all of the other demands on Germany's military manpower there has been no weakening of the force which Hitler is maintaining in Germany to keep the population in hand.

But the Nazis also realize that if the morale of the German army cracks it will be all up with Germany and with the Nazi regime. That is no doubt why they have begun introducing political commissars into the German army.

WE MUST NOT ASSUME from this that the morale of the German army is already cracked. Nothing that has happened in Russia or Italy suggests anything of the kind. But the Nazis must reckon with the possibility that German army morale may crack, and crack rapidly, once the Allied invasion has made any headway.

Preparing against such a development, the Nazi regime is determined to keep a continuously watchful eye on the morale of German troops and their officers.

From time to time a good deal has been written about the cleavage between the army and the party in the Third Reich. Much of that is nonsense.

The German army is an army which, regardless of past traditions of independence from the political arm, is thoroughly indoctrinated with Nazi ideas. So are the great majority of its leaders. But this does not mean that the German army will react under all conditions the way the Nazi leaders want it to react.

As was demonstrated first at Stalingrad and later at Bizerte and Tunis, German soldiers, when faced by overwhelming odds, surrender rather than commit suicide. This tendency is precisely what Hitler fears and why it is that he now proposes to tighten his grip on the army. From his point of view no sacrifices are too great if they enable him to stay in power a while longer.

Delinquent Congress

It was with great interest that I read your editorial in the May 16 issue on the question of cloture in the Senate. If the privilege of havinb unlimited time for debate has made filibustering possible, and if the principal reason why unlimited debate is permitted is simply tradition, then it is time to change the rules and do away with the privilege.

Unlimited debate is, however, by no means the only phase of congressional procedure which needs improvement. Consider, for example, the behavior of members of Congress on the floor of the House and Senate. Reading newspapers, talking to one's neighbor, or collecting in small groups to converse, walking up and down the aisles and other forms of inattention and disrespect shown to the person speaking are common.

Have members of Congress considered how their behavior must appear to visitors? The apparent inattention of Congress must disgust those who expect Congress to provide legislation as sound as possible for the conduct of the war and to take a leading part in providing for the postwar years. The galleries, in recent years, have held many service men and women who are more interested, perhaps, than anyone else in the kind of planning Congress is doing for the postwar period.

The roll call is an archaic procedure which could be discarded in favor of attendance checking by monitors. Why should the House of Representatives take up to 30 minutes each day merely to see if its members are present?

There are a few microphones available to those Congressmen who wish to speak from the floor, but they are not numerous enough. Why should not every member of Congress have access to a microphone so that his words could be heard throughout the galleries? Why should only parts of the proceedings be audible to visitors?

Not only would additional microphones be helpful to visible audiences but they would help to prepare members of Congress for the day when proceedings can be broadcast. The experience of New Zealand in broadcasting legislative proceedings has shown that such broadcasts are very popular. Interest in legislative matters on the part of many in the United States would undoubtedly increase were sessions of the House and Senate, as well as important committee sessions of both houses, to be broadcast.

Finally, there is the matter of attendance both at the legislative sessions of the House and Senate and at committee meetings. Is it not the duty of a Congressman or Senator to be in his seat, alert and attentive, during each session of the body to which he is elected, unless he is in attendance at a committee meeting scheduled for the afternoon? Should he not attend all of his committee meetings unless they conflict?

Legality of WLB Order

I read with some surprise the story which appeared in The Post this morning to the effect that I "hinted" before the Ramspeck committee that the order of the War Labor Board with respect to Montgomery Ward & Co. and the subsequent seizure of its Chicago plants were illegal.

At no time did I or any of my colleagues on the Labor Relations Board take the position that the orders of the War Labor Board or the executive order of the President were contrary to law.

In answering specific questions propounded by members of the House Investigating Committee, I referred to a conference between officials of the two labor agencies when the draft of the proposed executive order for taking possession of the plants was under consideration.

One of the legal questions considered was the possibility of litigation over the legality of any discharges which might be made pursuant to the maintenance of membership clause in the contract just prior to the election, since the validity of board elections has occasionally been protested when such discharges have been made under an extended contract. In such instances, claims have been made, where unions have lost elections, that the discharges were illegal; and where the contracting union has won, that such discharges have had a coercive effect. There is no controlling judicial decision in these situations.

Officials of the War Labor Board were of the opinion that no discharges would be requested by the union prior to the election and volunteered to have the union confirm this. Upon such confirmation being received, the members of this board, far from raising any question of the legality of the proposed procedure so far as the National Labor Relations Act was concerned, stated that under those circumstances they could not foresee any question of conflict with the statute.

Consequently, the inference that I was in "apparent agreement" with the broad position taken by Mr. Avery in reply to the President's subsequent telegram is unfounded.

Case History

Benes' Government

IN SPITE OF its long record of achievements for the Allied cause, the French Committee of National Liberation still remains unrecognized as the French provisional government. It actually is a government, carries on all the functions of a government daily, and constantly makes such arrangements with the countries which do not recognize it, as only one government can make with another.

To demonstrate that the great powers have made recognition depend on their own good will and their interests rather than on conceptions of legality or situations of fact, we have only to turn to one case in point: that of Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benes' government today is recognized not even as a provisional government, but as the government of Czechoslovakia—unlimited and unrestricted in its scope, so far as the United States, Great Britain and Russia are concerned. This is a fortunate situation, which corresponds entirely with the Allied interests in this war. It will permit Dr. Benes to bring his country back into the Allied camp with full authority immediately upon its liberation, whatever confusions he may find in the mentality of some of his people. Would not a similar result be advantageous also in the case of France, whose situation today is precisely that of Czechoslovakia, both being ruled by puppet governments which are prisoners and instruments of the Germans?

Benes Government

The Benes government attained its present status gradually, by no very consistent process, in which the various countries which took a part in promoting it to full sovereignty showed no particular discernment concerning legal principles. The developement of the situation was as follows:

On October 5, 1938, five days after Munich, Dr. Edouard Benes resigned as President of Czechoslovak Republic. On November 30, 1938, the Czech Parliament elected Dr. Emil Hacha to succeed him. Hacha is still head of the Czech government in Prague.

The first recognition of any kind given to Benes as having retained, or resumed, an official character, came on November 17, 1939, after the outbreak of the war, when the French government headed by Premier Edouard Daladier recognized a committee composed of Dr. Benes and seven other personalities chosen by him as "qualified to represent the Czechoslovak peoples." Its particular function was to implement an accord which had already been concluded on October 2 for the reconstitution of the Czech army. This military agreement, curiously enough, stated in its text that it had been concluded between France and the "Czechoslovak Provisional Government"—though no such organization existed at the time when it was signed.

In the interests of the Allied war effort, Premier Daladier saw no obstacles to granting partial recognition to the Benes group, although the French government did not possess, and could not obtain, any information as to whether the Czechoslovaks at that time desired to be represented by it. Possibly they did not. There was great confusion at the moment, and it may be that a great number of Czechs and Slovaks would have supported, respectively, the governments of Dr. Hacha and of the Slovak puppet, Monsignor Tiso. On December 20, 1939, Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, added his country's recognition of this committee to that of France.

Next Setup

On July 21, 1940, shortly after the defeat of France, the British government recognized the Czech committee as the "provisional government" of Czechoslovakia. Canada followed suit on October 12. The United States, not yet in the war, did nothing for the time being.

A year later, on July 18, 1941, Britain went the whole way and extended "full recognition to the Czechoslovak government," referring to Dr. Benes as "President of the Czechoslovak Republic." There was a reason for this move. On the same day, Russia signed an agreement with the Czechs, in which the group was referred to as the "Government of the Republic of Czechoslovakia."

America, however, was still a few steps to the rear. The United States recognized the Czech group as a "provisional government" only in a note from United States Ambassador in London John G. Winant to Czechoslovak Minister of Foreign Affairs Jan Masaryk on July 30, 1941, and was still referring to it as such in the lend-lease agreement concluded with the Czechs on July 11, 1942. Not until October 28, 1942, did American Ambassador Biddle inform Masaryk that the United States was finally according his group "completely and definitely legal and diplomatic recognition." The three big powers were finally all agreed on the status of the Czechoslovak government.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Sumner Welles' Argument

THE CENTRAL ARGUMENT of Mr. Sumner Welles' address last week is not clear to me. And since it is evidently not clear even to the New York Times which sponsored his address, it would be useful if he clarified it. The editor of the Times says Mr. Welles "urges the immediate creation of a United Nations council in which all the nations whose future is now being decided should participate." There are sentences in the address which seem to say just that.

LIPPMANN

Yet Mr. Welles does not in fact believe that all the nations whose future is now being decided should participate immediately. He does not believe that France should participate. He is himself one of the authors, and is still the ardent defender of the policy of not recognizing the existence of any government capable now of representing France. He knows that the present Polish government cannot participate because the Soviet Union does not recognize it. He knows that there is not now a Jugoslav government which can participate, and no Greek government. When he tried to be specific and name the European governments which ought to participate, he could think of only two, the Netherlands and the Norwegians.

IT IS, THEREFORE, puzzling to find him say, as he did, that "all of the United Nations" should have been represented in the political decisions about "the cases" of France, Italy, and eastern Europe. The fundamental question which had to be decided in all these cases has been what government, if any, was to be recognized. The French "case" has been: Shall it be the National Committee? The Italian case has been: Shall it be the King and Badoglio? The Polish case has been: Shall it be the present government-in-exile, or this government purged and reconstructed? The Yugoslav case has been: Shall it be Tito or the King's old government, or some new formation? The Greek case has been: Shall it be the King's old government, or a different one?

How then could there have been a council which "represented" all the United Nations in regard to Europe when the question was undecided as to who had the right to represent the leading United Nations of Europe? Without France, without Poland, without Belgium, without Yugoslavia, and without Greece as members of the council, how could the council be representative? Surely Mr. Welles is begging the very question to which he demands an immediate answer.

MR. WENDELL WILLKIE was the first prominent American to call for the creation of a council which includes others besides the great powers. But Mr. Willkie stands on firmer ground than Mr. Welles, for he has opposed the French policy which Mr. Welles still upholds. And it is only by altering our French policy, only by recognizing a French provisional government capable of representing France, that the narrow circle of the three great powers, dealing with Europe, of the four great powers dealing with the world, can be enlarged.

A UNITED NATIONS council cannot exist without governments which participate in it. It is idle to argue that the Netherlands and Norway, Mexico and Brazil, could or would presume to, "represent" France, or the peoples of eastern Europe and the Balkans. Certainly it would be better, surely it would be safer, as Mr. Welles says, if continental Europe were represented in the decisions which affect the future of Europe. But as long as Mr. Welles excludes France, which is the greatest of the friendly continental nations, he is trying to make bricks without straw.

In order to clarify his argument, Mr. Welles ought to say specifically which governments he thinks the great powers should recognize and then admit to the United Nations council.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

LOUIS B. MAYER, ebullient mogul of Hollywood and potentate of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has been spending some time with Catholic Archbishop Spellman of New York planning ways and means of producing "The Passion Play" in pictures.

Mr. Mayer has been most enthusiastic about this, is planning to spend more money on the Passion Play than any other picture that he ever produced. Archbishop Spellman is equally enthusiastic and most of the plans have been worked out.

The archbishop has agreed to select a young priest who will be able to play the part of the Savior. But because of the natural hesitancy on the part of the church in having one of its priesthood enter pictures as a career, it has been agreed that M.-G.-M. shall sign a contract with the priest that he shall not act in any other production or movie after the Passion Play is finished.

Bargaining Instinctive

AFTER SPENDING several weeks in New York arranging the details, Mr. Mayer was about to return to Hollywood when he called the archbishop's office and, apparently forgetting part of their previous conversation, went through the usual Hollywood routine of saying the price was too much.

After listening for a while, the archbishop good-naturedly reminded him that there wasn't going to be any price, that the church was glad to cooperate. Mayer joined in the laugh on himself.

Before he departed, however, Mayer received two gifts from the archbishop which he considered worth a small fortune.

Mayer has one of the most priceless gems in Hollywood—a good cook. But since he lives some distance from town, and since gasoline is scarce, he has been worried about keeping his cook, who is not an isolationist.

So the archbishop presented Mayer for his cook, who is a good Catholic, a specially blessed rosary and an autographed copy of the Bible.

Stassen-Dewey Double Hitch?

VERY QUIET MOVES have been launched recently by the Dewey and Stassen forces to get together in advance of the Chicago convention.

The approach was made through a close friend of Governor Stassen, who came to see Governor Dewey the other day and suggested that while he couldn't speak outright for Stassen, the Stassen forces might be willing to get on the Dewey bandwagon if Stassen could be assured of the No. 2 spot on the Republican ticket.

Dewey replied that he had preferred Governor Warren of California, but he would certainly be glad to consider Stassen for Vice President providing, of course, the Minnesota Governor withdrew from the race for President in advance.

It was left that Stassen's friend would write to him asking him categorically whether he would withdraw from the presidential race if given the No. 2 place on the ticket, and also whether his forces would cooperate to nominate Dewey. There has not been time as yet to receive a reply.

What the Dewey forces want to prevent is any remote chance of a deadlock at Chicago which might swing the nomination to Stassen, Justice Owen D. Roberts or to Willkie. While they have so many delegates they don't believe there is much chance of this. Nevertheless, they know that Pennsylvania's Joe Pew has been hoping for a deadlock which would throw the convention to Justice Roberts.

NOTE—Friends of Roosevelt are frank in admitting they would much rather have Dewey as an opponent than Roberts. The Supreme Court Justice has cooperated with the President at Pearl Harbor, has an even better record than Dewey's in breaking up graft as prosecutor of the Teapot Dome scandals, is tall, handsome, a powerful, brilliant speaker. However, GOP diehards consider him too much in favor of international cooperation.

Seven-Come-Eleven

MAYBE WAR LEADERS are superstitious or maybe there is something to the old seven-come-eleven system for shaking the dice. Anyway, Stanley Arnold of Cleveland has worked out a calendar of the war showing that every significant event has happened on either the 7th or 11th of the month. Here is the calendar:

Pearl Harbor	Dec. 7, 1941
Declaration of war on Germany and Italy	Dec. 11, 1941
Fall of Guam	Dec. 11, 1941
Invasion of Singapore	Feb. 11, 1942
Fall of Corregidor	May 7, 1942
Invasion of Kiska	June 7, 1942
Invasion of Gaudalcanal	Aug. 7, 1942
Invasion of North Africa	Nov. 7, 1942
Invasion of unoccupied France	Nov. 11, 1942
Retaking of Tunis and Bizerte	May 7, 1943
Retaking of Attu	May 11, 1943
Fall of Pantelleria	June 11, 1943

Finally, Mr. Arnold points out that the recent renewed attack on Italy started May 11 at 11 p. m.

Note: Wonder if the invasion is going to start on the 7th or the 11th.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Dewey's Republican Opposition

IN THE SENATE restaurant the other day, Senator Robert A. Taft made a bet with a Republican colleague that Governor Dewey would not be nominated at the convention next month in Chicago. Moreover, he is said to have asked odds of only four to one. The Senator who took Taft up on the bet was one of Dewey's few active proponents in the Senate. He was astonished that anyone—particularly anyone as calculating and careful as Bob Taft—would risk even a small sum on what seems to most people a certainty.

CHILDS

There are powerful Republicans here in Washington who would like to block Dewey. They were willing enough to back him in order to stop Wendell Willkie, but now that his nomination has such an inevitable look they want to reconsider.

The trouble is that no candidate with mounting strength is available on whom they can concentrate. Some of them talk about Governor Bricker of Ohio. They tell themselves earnestly that he is showing strength not reflected either in the polls or in the primary returns.

This strength is surely not evident to the naked eye. In the Oregon primary the other day, Bricker ran third with scarcely more than a thousand votes, although he had campaigned actively in the State. Second was Lieut. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, with more than 2500 votes, while upward of 25,000 voters wrote in Dewey's name.

CONSERVATIVE REPUBLICANS are fearful that Dewey is too liberal. Off the record one of them put it this way, "Why, he'll only be a better manager of the New Deal."

Others in the Dewey opposition stress the need to think of the Middle West. They complain that a Governor Dewey-Governor Warren ticket would seem to take the Republican revival of the great corn-hog belt for granted and thereby would give offense to millions of loyal GOP-ers.

This was the line peddled by Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune in a recent visit to Washington. The dignified colonel went so far as to call at the Senate Press Gallery and there encourage an interview with political correspondents. He said that while Dewey could not be stopped, he might stop himself.

Oddly enough another publisher, Henry R. Luce, on whom the Chicago Tribune and allied newspapers have poured fountains of scorn and opprobrium, takes the same point of view. An editorial in the current Life advises Republicans in deference to the Midwest to reconsider any first ballot, acclamation acceptance of Dewey.

STILL OTHERS complain that Dewey in his foreign policy speech before the publishers' convention in New York failed to throw in the word "sovereignty." They insist that any candidate must make an emotional bow to Midwestern sentiment if he wants the Middle West with him on a program of world collaboration.

The truth is that the Republican Party—exactly like the Democratic Party — contains every conceivable element within it. They aren't parties at all, in the true sense, but big, sprawling circus tents under which every kind of political juggler is on exhibition.

The best political news in a long time came out of the GOP tent. Forty-three-year-old Wayne L. Morse a college professor and a former member of the War Labor Board, defeated Senator Rufus Holman for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Oregon. Holman was a liability any way you looked at him—what salty old Hugh Johnson used to call "a revolving liability."

The issue between them was clearly drawn. Morse in his campaign denounced Holman as "a dangerous isolationist," which was probably an understatement. Holman worked himself up to a pitch of branding Morse as "a New Deal carpetbagger."

It is younger men like Morse who can reshape the GOP. With them in his camp Dewey could justify his criticism of the Roosevelt Administration as tired and cynical. In my opinion those who believe they can stop the New York Governor are indulging in the rankest kind of wishful thinking. He's too far out ahead in this horse race.

Ban on Diplomat Travel 'Traps' Morgenstierne in London

By Edward T. Folliard

Wilhelm Munthe Morgenstierne, Norway's popular Ambassador to the United States, has been "trapped" in London by Britain's order forbidding diplomats to leave England pending the open of a western front.

The Norwegian Embassy here has been making efforts to arrange for his passage back to this country, but so far without success.

Ambassador Morgenstierne, who began his diplomatic career here as a young attache in 1910, left Washington last month for London. There he reported to the royal Norwegian government in exile, headed by King Haakon.

When the Ambassador began making plans to return, he found that his movements had been frozen by an unprecedented order by the British Government. To protect secrets of the coming invasion, the Government on April 18 flatly forbade neutral and Allied diplomats to leave the country. Also it subjected all their communications to censorship.

The only exception made was in the case of diplomats representing Russia, the United States and the British commonwealths.

Ambassador Morgenstierne has a reputation along Embassy Row of being a good man to entrust with a secret, and no diplomat is more ardent in his desire to see Germany defeated. All of this, of course, is well known to the British Foreign Office; but it just so happened that the Ambassador's visit coincided with the ban on travel.

Henrik de Kauffmann, the Minister of Denmark, also was in London at the time, but he managed to get away from the island fortress and return to Washington.

One explanation for this was that Minister de Kauffmann already had arranged his passage back to the United States and was allowed to proceed despite the travel ban.

Abrupt Ending of Brewster Orders Called Blow to Morale

Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said yesterday that the Navy's termination of its contract with Brewster Aircraft on short notice was one of the worst blows to labor morale of the war, and showed a lack of foresight and planning, and a disregard of labor's rights.

Frankensteen told a press conference that the Navy had rejected pleas of the union and the management for a trminatio ncontract for 250 planes so the company would be able to keep its labor force together while obtaining other work and retooling. He emphasized that the union was not suggesting that the Navy should order more planes than it needed. "It's merely a question of allocation and planning," the UAW officer said. He pointed out that the same plane is being built in Akron, Ohio, and Bridgeport, Conn., and that production was cut back only slightly there, although both cities are critical labor market areas. He pointed out that New York is not a critical labor shortage area and that Brewster had no other work to keep its doors open.

Nearly 5000 Take "Holiday"

New York, May 24 (AP).—Nearly 5000 of the 7000 union employes at the five Long Island City plants of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation today began a "three-day holiday" in anticipation of their lay-off Monday because of termination of Navy contracts July 1.

The holiday was explained by Marco Cicala, vice president of local 365 of the United Automobile Workers of America, as an interval during which company and union officials will decide on lay-offs lists and compute payroll accounts.

Remaining on their jobs, Cicala said, were about 1200 workers engaged on "hot items and bottlenecks." He advised all employes to return to work on Monday, when he said announcement will be made of the names of those laid off.

Meanwhile, everything possible is being done to prevent a mass lay-off Zeu's Soucek, a vice president and director of the corporation, said today. He added the plants practically were closed down.

Since the Navy announcement Monday of termination of the contracts, four Government agencies have sought war-useful work for Brewster's plants.

"If we can get some kind of subcontract in the airplane line, it will be better from a standpoint of lay-offs," Soucek said, "because there will be little re-tooling necessary and our employes will have the skill and 'know how' to make such products."

Lightning Hits Upper Marlboro Radio Tower

An electrical storm accompanied by high winds and a heavy downpour of rain caused considerable damage in the area in the vicinity of Upper Marlboro, seat of Prince Georges County.

Principal damage reported was that to the 123-foot police radio aerial in the rear of the courthouse, which was struck by lightning. The lightning traveled along the lead-in wire toward the courthouse but jumped to a metal drainpipe on the side of the courthouse going into the ground by way of the pipe.

A horse belonging to Samuel A. Wyvill, editor of the Enquirer-Gazette at Upper Marlboro, was struck by lightning and killed. Lightning struck the chimney of the farm house of Henry O. Cooper and caused damage of approximately $200. Power lines, including several high voltage ones, were down in the vicinity of Croom, Md., about five miles from Upper Marlboro.

HEARD IN WASHINGTON over WWDC

Nats Edge Indians, 5 to 4, in Uphill Battle

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, May 24.—They tossed a party for Mel Harder in Cleveland's nicest hotel tonight. He had it coming to him, Cleveland fans figured. He's the only pitcher now active in the American League who has won 200 major league games. Harder achieved his 200th this week, all of them won for Cleveland teams in the last 17 years.

POVICH

Upon the speaker's dais was another fellow, who used to pitch pretty well himself. He said he couldn't remember that anybody had ever given him a party when he had pitched his 200th big league victory. "They didn't even bother about it when I won my 300th game, either," he said. "Or my 400th or 500th. I guess those weren't party-giving times."

The only guy who could be telling the truth about winning 500 big league games was, of course, Cy Young. He was simply the champion of mass-production victories. He's a 77-year-old farmer these days. Lives on his farm at Newcomerstown, Ohio, with a married daughter. But old Cy isn't accepting any slippered ease in his sunset years. He farms his farm pretty vigorously. Split 3000 fence rails for himself last winter, he said.

Cy Young won all of those games, 511 to be exact, during the 22 years he was in the majors. At 42, he was still a winning pitcher. He retired in 1910. His arm was still all right, but he was getting too fat, he said. "They finally bunted me out of the league," the old man grinned. "But it took a long time for 'em to catch up with me."

His name is in the hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., as the pitcher who won more games than any other, but strangely they tabbed him wrong. On his Cooperstown bust is engraved "Denton Tecumseh Young." He's bewildered about that. "I don't know where they got that 'Tecumseh' from. I'm Denton True Young and somebody must have been kidding."

The "Cy" is a contraction from the nickname of Young's early days when he was knocking the fence boards out of the backstops with his speed for the Canton, Ohio, town team. There wasn't a catcher in the section who could hold him. An inspired baseball writer tabbed him Cyclone Young. Thus he became Cy Young, scourge of big league batters.

He says he won all those games by, paradoxically, saving his arm. "I never did see any sense in those long warm-ups the pitchers took," he related. "I figured my arm had only so many pitches in it and there was no sense wasting 'em on warming up. I'd throw about six balls just before starting a game, and when I went in as a relief pitcher, I'd just get up off the bench and start throwing."

"A pitcher could work oftener in those da ,syhoutgh. I would be in there every other day and never think I was overworked. Of course, we didn't have to throw that lively ball. We didn't have to be so careful about working on the hitter. We weren't under the same strain as those modern pitchers who, if they make a mistake, might see their pitch knocked out of the lot."

The best pitcher he ever saw, says Cy, was Walter Johnson. "He won 413 games playing with bad teams, while I was pitching for good Boston and Cleveland teams. There never was anybody who could throw as hard as Johnson. He finally came to the same end I did. His arm was all right, but he was getting so big and paunchy he couldn't step lively enough on bunts."

Cleveland's general manager, Roger Peckinpaugh, shared in the tribute to Harder tonight. Peckinpaugh, incidentally, broke in with the Cleveland club in 1910, Cy Young's farewell season. "He still threw the fastest ball on the club even at 42 years old," Peck recalled.

It was Peckinpaugh who signed Harder for the Indians back in 1928. He liked the slender right-hander who he had seen pitching in a Class D league, and sent him to New Orleans. Peck called Harder back to the Indians in a hurry, though, when he noted Harder's name in the New Orleans box scores with great frequency.

"They were overworking Harder," said Peck. "I knew he was a frail kid who couldn't stand that much pitching, and we brought him to Cleveland where we could keep an eye on him. He never pitched for anybody else. Down through the years, even when we had Bob Feller, we always did say, if we wanted to win a certain ball game the guy we'd like to have in there for us was Mel Harder."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 24.—New York racing fans, most feverish bettors in horse history, will be delighted to learn that beginning Monday night they can lose twice as much money as they've been blowing to date. Harness racing, under floodlights, opens that night at Roosevelt Raceway.

CONSIDINE

There will be 42 nights of harness racing at the raceway, built on the remains of the two million dollar auto racing plant which George Marshall and some others put together in the middle 1930's. There now are 300 trotters and pacers at the track, practicing the new standing start which will be introduced at the meeting and getting accustomed to the clanking of the money machines.

Like unto the promoters of thoroughbred racing, the harness entrepreneurs will make it easy for the patrons to reach their little waterloos. Trains will run to within less than half a mile of the plant, and wagons will cart them the rest of the way. All concrete approaches to mutuel windows run downhill, considered by the racing people to be the finest contribution to the comfort of the bettor since the installation of the $50 windows.

Harness racing hasn't had much of a chance to prove its popularity around New York. It had barely got under way at the reformed auto track when the war came along and blackout restrictions went into effect. Top attendance at the raceway before the war was 8109, with mutuel handle of $153,432.

For the past two years harness racing here has been committed at twilight. Last year's New York trotting meetings were held at Empire City by order of Governor Dewey. The Hambletonian drew 12,407 and a mutuel handle of $353,443, the highest ever recorded in harness history. The thing may be on the up-sweep. Everything else that involves gambling or night entertainment is going that way.

Night is here to stay, we predict. When a baseball owner as reactionary as Clark Griffith throws his daytime games away from May 10 to September 11—except for Sundays and holidays—and subjects his artists to a steady diet of night ball, you can wager the pendelum has swung. Dog racing in Massachusetts, at night, attracted an average handle of $50,000 ten years ago. Last season's closing night at the Revere Beach track amounted to $430,000. Massachusetts made three million dollars out of dog racing last year, will clear more this year.

The Boston Yankees, the National Football League's new team, will play two night games this next season, with borrowed lighting equipment. The Redskins will play two exhibition games at night in Baltimore, against Green Bay and the Bears.

Anyway, the giddy-yaps, their slender sulkies and old pappy guys who ride 'em, are coming back to Roosevelt Raceway. That will give New Yorkers eight hours of racing each day—from 1:30 to 5:30 in the afternoons and from 8 p. m. until midnight.

When Fred Corcoran asked Lefty Gomez if he'd go to Italy to entertain American troops, Lefty thought it over for a moment and replied: "I can't go . . . before 4:30 today."

You might doubt it, at first blush, but one of the best-enjoyed sports programs now being put on for American troops is a tennis stunt involving Alice Marble and Mary Hardwick. The girls—best players produced in American and British court circles for years—have appeared at countless United States camps and in Panama. They want to go overseas.

Kids who never saw a tennis match, go for the kind of tennis Alice and Mary play. They look like pin-up girls but slam the ball with masculine ferocity. They play two or three sets of singles, then call for volunteers—which is when the fun begins. If two GI's appear, the girls split up and play mixed doubles. Usually, if two officers volunteer, the girls team up against them and, invariably, kick the stuffings out of the brass hats, to the huge delight of the GI's in the audience.

Hayes Clouts 'Grand Slam,' A's Win, 8-4

Detroit, May 24 (AP).—Frank Hayes belted his sixth homer of the season and his second with the bases loaded to give the Philadelphia athletics an 8-to-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers today, ending Detroit's six-game winning streak. The A's thus replaced Detroit in the American League's first division.

Don Black pitched a two-hitter until the ninth when he yielded all four runs. The defeat went to Rufus Gentry, first of four Tiger pitchers. The veteran Walter (Boom Boom) Beck was victim of Hayes' clout in the second.

Curry's Safety Tops Columbia For Navy, 2 to 1

Annapolis, May 24 (AP).—Plebe Third Sacker "Rabbit" Curry, playing the star role for the second straight game, broke up a 10-inning fray today with a single with two men on base, to give Navy's baseball team a 2-1 victory over Columbia University.

Curry hit for the circuit in Navy's half of the tenth frame against Duke last Saturday to break a 4-4 deadlock and his hit in the pinch again this afternoon chalked up the Middies' thirteenth win. The Tars wind up the schedule against Army on Saturday.

Columbia Pitcher Harry Garbett kept the Middie bats reasonably quiet after allowing two hits and a walk, to load the bags, in the first inning. In the sixth frame Dick Duden singled in Outfielder Wirt Thayer to give the Tars a 1-0 edge, which was soon overcome in the eighth when Columbia Center Fielder Tommy Fox tripled and made a successful steal home with two men out.

Three Navy pitchers, all of whom are possible starters for the Army game, held Columbia to two hits.

Then in Navy's half of the tenth Catcher Vic Finos singled, but was forced, placing Pitcher Conway Taylor on the initial hassock. Outfielder Herbie Mills drew a pass and Curry drove a hard line single to center, scoring Taylor with the run.

Lucky Draw, 3-5 Shot, Wins Peter Pan 'Cap

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 24 (AP). A crowd of 17,568, smallest of the meeting because of dreary, drizzling weather, saw George D. Widener's Luck Draw reward those who installed him a 3-to-5 favorite in the fifth running of the mile and a furlong Peter Pan Handicap here today. The gelded son of Jack High gave weight and a beating to eitght other 3-year- olds, earning the $7875 first award by a half length. It was an easy score, Johnny Longden having the mount well in hand.

William Ziegler, jr.'s Bounding Home was second, a length and a half before Philip Godfrey's Comenow, with Hoodoo fourth. Under 119 pounds, Lucky Draw was teletimed in 1:52 flat. The track was well soaked.

Lucky Draw was being pointed for the Derby this spring. He ran once, winning the second division of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica. Then, on the eve of the Derby he was stricken with a case of colic. He was one of 1943's top juveniles.

Being a gelding, the bay bounder is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes, June 3. Three others in today's feature—Bounding Home, Hoodoo and Free Lance—are nominated for the closing day classic.

There was a bunched run for positions after the start, with Lucky Draw gaining command in a furlong or so. Longden, earning a double, let the Widener star open up daylight, then took a snug hold while disposing of Hoodoo and Jovine. Comenow ranged int osecond place around the big bend but it remained for Bounding Home to supply what contention there was through the stretch. The Ziegler colt gained on the winner in the last sixteenth only because Longden did not needlessly extend Lucky Draw.

Foot Free, $4.70, won the final event by a length and a half. Sutton Place was second and General War third.

The day's play was $1,863,819.

Pirates Cash In on Errors NTo Trample Braves, 8 to 1

Boston, May 24 (AP).—Five unearned runs in the first inning with the aid of two errors started the Pittsburgh Pirates off today to an 8-to-1 victory over the Boston Braves.

Butch Nieman's homer in the eighth was the only Boston tally. The circuit drive sailed over the right field fence—a new barrier which makes the Braves' outfield one of the smallest in the major leagues.

From the five-inning first to the seventh, Big Jim Tobin held the Pirates hitless, but the damage was done and the big Boston pitcher got his fifth defeat at the hands of the Pirates in his career on the mound.

Tobin has beaten the Pirates 13 times in his major league career and until today had taken six straight Pirate games.

Johnny Barrett walked in the first to open festivities. Pete Coscarart followed with a grounder to Connie Ryan, who threw wild to Whitey Wietelmann as he attempted to start a double-play.

Barrett scored as Jim Russell grounded out. When Bob Elliott walked and Frank Gustine hit a slow ball, which Tobin fumbled, and another run came in.

Elliott scored on a single by Vince DiMaggio. After Al Lopez was given an intentional walk, the fourth and fifth runs came in on Truett Sewell's double, which should have been an easy catch for Rolly Gladu.

Sewell, incidentally, hit as well as pitched a good game as he accounted for three of Pittsburgh's eight hits, two of them doubles, and batted in three Pirate runs.

Camp Lee Nine Shattered By Transfers

Camp Lee, Va., May 24 (AP).—Routine transfer to combat duty over the weekend of seven regulars all but wrecked the Camp Lee baseball team, breaking up a combination that has won 12 out of 16 games.

Earl Lurtz has been named manager of the Travellers to replace Soddy Groat, who was among those transferred. Lurtz is one of four pitchers left on the squad, the others being Fred Wolfe, Bill Stone and Bruno Carosa.

In addition to Groat, who alternated between the infield and outfield, those transferred were Joe Kosinski, second base; Ed Mutryn, third base and outfield; Joe Owens, first base; Paul Giacomini, outfielder, and Hank Nowak and Ted Garbee, veteran pitchers.

Also lost to the Leemen is Ted Bosiack, former manager and catcher, who is undergoing treatment at the Woodrow Wilson General Army Hospital for a leg injury.

Lieut. Arthur P. Hand, athletic officer, said that every game at present scheduled will be played.

St. Paul Manager Fined

Utica Braves Acquire Catcher Bill Anske

Utica, N. Y., May 24 (AP).—Acquisition of Catcher Bill Anske was announced last night by the Utica Braves, of the Eastern League.

Anske, former catcher for Narberth, of the Philadelphia Main Line League, was optioned to the Braves by the Phillies who lost him to the Army two days before his first training trip last spring. He returned to the Phillies this spring after receiving his Army discharge in October.

Bainbridge, Md., May 24 (AP).—More than 50 of the Nation's top-ranking swimming stars will arrive at the Bainbridge Naval Training Station tomorrow for the center's first invitation swimming meet, along with several of the country's best divers.

Bainbridge athletic officials reported today that entries have been received from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and other places as far south as Cherry Point, N. C., which will send Lieut. Phil Delano of the Marines to compete in free-style events.

Terp Gridders, Spartans to Meet Nov. 11

Clarence W. Spears, University of Maryand football coach, announced yesterday that the Old Liners would meet Michigan State's gridders Nov. 11 at Lansing, Mich., in the seventh game of the coming season's eight contests.

Michigan State will resume football next fall after dropping the sport for a year. The contract with Maryland calls for only one game.

Hampden-Sydney, West Virginia, Virginia Military Institute and Virginia have been signed for games at College Park. The Old Liners will play Florida and Wake Forest away from home.

Spears said that although no service tems had been scheduled, there was a posibility that one would be added.

Chattanooga Nine Signs Catcher Rufus Jackosn

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 24 (AP). In a continued effort to bolster the Chattanooga Choo-Choso, currently more like a caboose than a locomotive, Club President Joe Engel announced today the purchase of Rufus Jackson, a catcher who bats lefthanded, from Richmond of the Piedmont League.

The Lookout front office said Boyds; ;Burdette's garage, Hyatts-Jackson, 26, had had about five years' experience in the Southeastern and Piedmont Leagues. Indications were the deal was helped along by Engel making Lookout Hurler Bucky Jacobs, now in war work, available for Richmond home games.

Other major acquisitons recently were Harley Boss, slugging first baseman bought from Knoxville; Pitcher Mac McCormick from Minneapolis and Outfielder Neil Sheridan from San Francisco.

Tribe Held By Leonard After First

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, May 24.—Dutch Leonard, performing like the worst sort of Indian giver, gave the Indians four runs in the first inning today and then took back the ball game by pitching shutout ball for the rest of the afternoon.

The Nats burrowed out from under that 4-0 deficit of the first inning and won the ball game, 5 to 4, with the immense help of Leonard's three-hit pitching in the last eight innings.

Leonard was a considerable guy after that dismal opening inning, when the Indians sloughed him for five hits. He rapped out two hits himself, and squeezed an important run home for the Nats in the sixth with an incredibly perfect bunt at a time when two were out.

The upshot was that the Nats moved into second place in the league standings pending the result of the St. Louis-Boston game tonight.

Smith Lasts Six Innings

An old nemesis of the Nats, Southpaw Al Smith lasted only six innings today, but the Nats got the winning guns off Rookie Ed Kleiman in the seveenth when they put together three hits and a pair of walks at a time when they were trailing, 4-3.

The hits that won the game weren't much to look at but they were extremely effective. Joe Kuhel drove over the tying run in the seventh by beating out a high-hopping infield grounder by a half step with the bases full, and Johnny Sullivan got the decisive run home with another infield hit to Bourdeau.

The Nats don't have their four-game losing streak any more.

Jake Powell got the Nats a run in the fourth when he led off with a double to left. He scored on Rick Ferrell's single to center. In the sixth, the Nats cut the Indians' lead to 4-3 after two were out.

Ferrell drew a walk from Smith and Kuhel singled down the first base line. Sullivan singled to left scoring Ferrell, and when Seerey muffed the ball, Kuhel moved to third and Sullivan to second. With two out, Leonard then executed the squeeze play with a bunt down the third base line that caught the Indians flat-footed, and Kuhel scored from third as Leonard beat it out.

Myatt Starts Rally

Against Klieman in the seventh, Myatt commenced the winning rally with a single to center. He was forced at second on Powell's bunt, but Spence drew a walk. Torres bounded out to Klieman but Ferrell walked to fill the bases. Kuhel's contribution at this point was his infield hit to Boudreau that scored Powell with the tying run. And then the fleet Sullivan beat out a slow bounder to Boudreau and Spence scored from third with the winning run.

In that first inning, Leonard didn't have control of his knuckler and had to discard it when he got behind on the count. The first four men to face him, Boudreau, Rocco, Cullenbine and Hockett singled. With two out, Seerey drove in the third and fourth runs of the inning with a single to center.

That wasn't enough, though.

That four-run squall Lenonard ran into might have been limited to one run if Gil Torres had not momentarily fumbled Rosar's grounder, resulting merely in a forceout instead of a double-play. . . . Leonard hit the longest single of the game, a smash high against the right field fence that bounded into Cullenbine's hands. . . . When Leonard laid down a perfect bunt with two out to squeeze home a run from third in the sixth, Manager Lon Boudreau of the Indians was properly flabbergasted and threw up his hands in a helpless gesture. . . . George Case had the ill luck to be hit on the shoulder in the eighth by the hardest pitch of the game. . . . When Reynolds also threw a pitch close to the head of George Myatt, the next batter, he drew a warning from Umpire Cal Hubbard who walked to the mound and said he didn't like it. . . . Kuhel's right ribs were still so sore he didn't take infield practice before the game. . . . The Nats brought along the uniform of Harlond Clift in the hope the veteran third baseman may be induced to report while the club is in the West. . . . Catcher Al Evans is due to join the team tomorrow night when the Indians stage their first night game at the Municipal Stadium, with Mel Harder their pitcher.

Gray Call Wins by Photo at Charles Town

Jockey Kirk Beats Choice To Pay $6

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., May 24.—Walter Mountain's Gray Call, an Audley Farms' castoff, showed a lot of stretch drive here this afternoon to win a photo finish of the fifth race, best offering on the Wednesday program. A crowd of 2,000 saw the son of Belfonde, trained by John Hartnett, the veteran English conditioner, have a nick the better of J. M. Rogers' colt Lord Loudoun in a thrilling battle to the wire.

Lord Loudoun was installed the favorite in the field of eight going over the "Charles Town course" of 6,170 feet more than six furlongs. Gray Call was second choice and paid $6. The son of Belfonde and Miss Ann was clocked in 1:17 2-5.

Jockey Kirk Up

Jockey Woodrow Kirk steadied Gray Call within striking distance in the early stages. Lord Loudoun, recent winner of a shorter race here, shook off Louis L. to open a good advantage on the backstretch. Lord Loudoun was running easily entering the stretch when Gray Call began his drive. Jockey Butsy Fernandez put Lord Loudoun to pressure, but the gray horse was not to be denied and won going away for the first victory of his career.

The daily double paid $19.60. E. A. Nicodemus' Sea Pilot won the first race at $7.80 and H. G. Tonkin's Oomph took the second at $4.20.

W. Keegan's Fair Hero unseated Jockey Leon Garrett and then crashed through the fence. He was scratched and all bets, as well as $2 tickets in double off Sea Pilot, were refunded.

Between races—Jockey Ralph (Roo) Kirk has been suspended for rough and incompetent riding in yesterday's feature race aboard Scotch Age . . . That leaves only one of the Kirk boys in action, Woodrow . . . Carson is still on the ground as the result of his accident at Pimlico . . . Jim Milton, veteran starter on Maryland's major tracks, will serve as a stewart at the Hagerstown meeting opening July 11. . . . Jockey Buddy Root may ride out the meeting here . . . He has a stake engagement at Delaware Park on Monday but expects to return here on Tuesday. . . . He is leading the riders here by a wide margin . . . Clifton W. White, president of Cumberland, was a visitor . . . A brand new rider was in action today, C. Coker, under contract to W. C. Pickett and an apprentice . . . Phil Simms, now in the Army is returning to Fort Riley, Kans. . . . He lost his last horse yesterday when Pearson and Shaw claimed Silver Beam for $1050. . . . Harold Holland is doing a nice job of starting here . . . John Morrissey, the regular starter here, is now in the Army at Camp Blanding, Fla.

Maury '9' to Play N. C. Champions

Norfolk, Va., May 23 (AP).—Maury High School, probable champions of the Tidewater Scholastic Baseball League, today accepted an invitation to play the Wilson, N. C. High School team, recent winners of the State Class A baseball championship. The Commodores will get their first taste of night baseball when they take the field down in the Carolina city Friday night.

It will be the second meeting of the two schools in what may be termed the "Bi-State Series." Wilson won the Carolina title last year as did Maury the Tidewater crown. The Commodores invaded the Turpentine State that year with a weakened line-up as their ace pitcher, Lefty Harrison, underwent an operation for appendicitis, and Wilson shaded the Commodores for the first win in the modern rivalry.

Suspension of Don Meade Lifted by N. Y. Jockey Club

New York, May 24 (AP).—Don Meade, one of the country's foremost jockeys, ended his second longest term on the ground today when his suspension, in effect since October 29, 1942, was lifted by the stewards of the Jockey Club (New York.)

The 31-year-old South Dakota born rider was suspended 19 months ago on a charge of collusion with Herb Lindberg, another jockey, in a Handicap race at Jamaica. Lindberg's suspension was lifted at the end of 1942 but Meade was denied a riding license in 1943 by the Jockey Club stewards and then lost an appeal to the New York State Racing Commission.

Meade, the country's No. 1 rider in 1939 and '41 and winner of the Kentucky Derby on E. R. Bradley's Brokers Tip in 1933, started riding on the big time tracks some 15 years ago.

In 1936 he was barred from riding in Florida for violation of rules of racing, and other States concurred in the action of the Florida State Racing Commission. He made several attempts to have his suspension lifted but it was not until August 12, 1938 that the Florida racing body permitted him to again ply his trade. The following spring he was granted a license to ride on New York and Maryland tracks.

He signalized his return to the saddle by riding 255 winners and again topped the jockeys in 1941 with 210 victories.

Virginia Tops Aircraft Nine

Charlottesville, Va., May 24.—Virginia's baseball team defeated the Carrier Aircraft Service Unit team from Norfolk here today, 4 to 2, to maintain its clean slate of victories in home games.

Starting twirler for the Cavaliers was Richard, big right-hander from Texas A. and M., who blanked the visitors for seven innings. C. A. S. U's two runs in the last two frames were made off Hank Neighbors.

Schrick, C. A. S. U's giant southpaw, yielded 10 hits, four of which were doubles.

Both teams fielded sharply throughout. Spectacular catches were made by Wilcox of Virginia, and by Robinson and Lucas for the visitors.

Absent-Minded Coach Steals Second, Too

Aberdeen, Md., May 24 (AP).—Soldiers at the Aberdeen Proving Ground have their own nomination for the most absent-minded baseball coach.

Tech. Sergt. T. M. Collins got on first base in a camp game the other day, saw the steal signal flashed and high-tailed it for second. He made it in a cloud of dust.

When he picked himself up he found the first base coach standing right beside him, puffing slightly, but happy. Acting on his own signal, the coach had stolen second too.

Cubs Farm Two Pitchers To Nashville Club

Chicago, May 24 (AP).—The Cubs have released Garth Mann and Johnny Burrows, both right-handed pitchers, to the Nashville Southern Association club on option.

Mann, 25, won 18 games for Montgomery in the Southeastern League in 1942, but was out of baseball last year.

Burrows, 30, was in 23 games as a relief pitcher for the Cubs last year, winning none and losing two. Neither has seen much service this year.

Lots of Luck For Voiselle— Its All Bad!

New York, May 24 (AP).—If you have a four-leaf clover or a rabbit's foot, you might send 'em to Bill Voiselle, hard-luck hurler for the New York Giants.

The long, lean, lanky lad from Ninety-Six, N. C., made his big league debut with three straight wins—but since then has dropped six in a row. But you can't blame Bill's pitching.

Washingtonian Cites Home Case of Antagonism As Her Maid Bursts Into Tears, Then Quits; Others Thrown Into Spotlight by World News

THE RECENT all-out Allied move to halt Swedish ball-bearing shipments to Germany, and the inquiry launched by the Treasury and the Alien Property Custodian regarding the 10-million-dollar SKF ball-bearing plant in Philadelphia bring into the spotlight a number of persons prominent in the Washington scene.

First, of course, are Mr. and Mrs. William L. Batt, the former of whom is president of American SKF. Vice chairman of the War Production Board, Mr. Batt has been here since 1940; was one of the first strong advocates of unrestricted aid to Russia; has made numerous trips to Moscow and London, and feels as strongly as does anyone else that Sweden should end shipments of ball-bearings to Germany.

William L. Batt

He is convinced, however, that widespread rumors of Nazi control of SKF are Nazi propaganda moves to retard American production.

Mr. Batt was on the Nazi blacklist long before this country declared war on Germany. Brought into Government service at the suggestion of W. Averill Harriman, he was one of the initial advocates of the need for converting peace plants into war plants . . . and that was a couple of years before most Americans would admit, even to themselves, that war with Germany was inevitable.

ONE OF WASHINGTON'S most attractive hostesses—she looks enough like Claudette Colbert to be her sister—Mrs. Batt joined her husband here shortly after the fall of France . . . and was no sooner settled in her Georgetown home than she discovered German antagonism to her husband.

A German-American girl applied for a job as chambermaid. Her references were of the best, and she had completed a course in kindergarten training. Mrs. Batt had a grandchild staying with her at the time. The applicant seemed ideal for the job, and she was engaged. A week later Mrs. Batt went to visit relatives in Indiana, and when she returned she had good reports of the new maid from other members of the domestic staff.

Imagine her surprise when the first time she saw the maid again, the latter informed her, "I'm going to leave."

"You're leaving? I'm sorry. I've heard such good reports of your work in my absence."

The maid burst into tears; sobbed violently for several seconds. "You hate me, don't you?" she finally asked.

"Hate you?" Mrs. Batt could hardly believe her ears. "What on earth do you mean? Why should I hate you?"

"I've been warned," was the reply, "that all SKF people hate Germans! I can't find anything wrong with Mr. Batt, and I think you are wonderful. But I can't work for you. I've been warned . . ."

A MODEST WOMAN with a tendency to retire to the background and give all the spotlight to her husband and their five grown children, Mrs. Batt has shied away from the camera lenses in this picture-conscious city so often that few news photographers know her.

At a Soviet Embassy party back in the Litvinoff days, a brace of cameramen kept bulbs flashing continuously on the receiving line. Mr. and Mrs. Batt and one of their sons were greeting the Ambassador when a photographer approached and asked her to step out of the line "so we can get a picture of Mr. Batt and his family."

It is probably because Mrs. Batt has the blood of martyrs in her veins that she is a confirmed champion of the underdog. Just now one of her chief intrests is the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe, an organization of which both she and Mr. Batt are directors.

That's just the kind of thing her ancestor, George Burroughs, noted figure—and martyr—in the Salem witchcraft trials, would have joined and promoted. A graduate of Harvard in 1650, he was a rector of a church in Salem at the time when Mercy Lewis started the witchcraft rumors that spread like wildfire.

Burroughs himself was a victim, but his death by hanging stopped the hideous procedure, for he repeated the Lord's Prayer to the end before he died . . . thus convincing spectators that he was innocent.

THERE ARE THREE married daughters in the Batt family, and two sons who are in the European theater of war. The eldest boy, William Batt, jr., who gave up his job as special assistant to W. Averill Harriman in the American Embassy in London, to join the Army as a private, is now a captain. Robert Batt is a lieutenant.

Mrs. Batt, by the way, recently received an official invitation from the Soviet Vice Commissar, second only to Stalin, to visit Moscow. Whether she will go is on the lap of the gods . . . or rather, the State Department.

Frequent visitors to Washington in recent years have been two foreign-born persons, one of whom has been strongly under suspicion since the investigation of SKF began. They are Count and Countess Von Rosen, who came to this country and settled in Philadelphia soon after the Nazi invasion of Norway. Both feared that Sweden would be invaded next.

Count Von Rosen, whose family has lived in Sweden for more than 200 years, was with the Swedish company of SKF and in that capacity became connected with the Philadelphia plant. Apparently, in recent months, he has been confused with another Count Von Rosen, who happens to be a brother-in-law of Hermann Goering by his first wife.

CLOSE FRIENDS affirm that the SKF Count Von Rosen and his wife are about as anti-Nazi as anyone you can imagine . . . and for a very obvious reason. Countess Von Rosen is the daughter of one of the most prominent Jews in Sweden, and she and her husband and their two children fled from Europe to escape Nazi persecution.

A woman of great beauty, Countess Von Rosen was one of the most highly admired girls in England back in the days when she was studying in Oxford. Fact is, a very prominent man in Washington today, who was a Rhodes scholar then, fell madly in love with her, and urged her to marry him.

Since coming to this country, Countess Von Rosen has been an active volunteer worker with the Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia. "She is as beautiful as a Greek goddess, and as gentle and full of good works as Rebecca in 'Invanhoe,'" Mrs. Batt said of her the other day.

Some of the difficulties in which Count Von Rosen has been involved recently may have their basis in his tendency toward braggadocio, but acquaintances who knew him many years before he came to this country are convinced that suspicions of his being a Nazi agent are completely unfounded.

ANOTHER PERSON in the SKF picture who visits here frequently is Mrs. Richard Demotte, wife of the man who has been SKF sales manager in this country for a quarter of a century. Her son, who happens to be a descendant of Richard Warren of Mayflower fame, is in the Navy Air Force, and has narrowly escaped death a number of times in the seven major engagements in which he has participated in the Pacific theater of war.

Two directors of SKF, also widely known here, are Blair Lee, son of the late Senator Blair Lee of Maryland, and Ray Morris of New York, distinguished member of the firm of Brown Bros. & Harriman.

Dutch Princess Honor Guest For Opening

Princess Juliana of the Netherlands was guest of honor at a special preview on the occasion of the reopening of the paintings galleries at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art last evening. Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Netherlands Ambassador, was also present for the dramatic occasion, symbolizing the end of the air raid menace in New York.

Princess Juliana told the assembled audience that "the return of the masterpieces to their former surroundings is, not only for all those who are here present, but for the entire world, a proof of the unassailable and unwavering confidence in the future on the part of the American people and the American Government."

Many of the works of art which were returned to the museum are of Dutch origin. "The Netherlands," the Princess added, "is the country of Rembrandt, Vermeer, Hals and so many others of the great masters."

At a recent meeting of the executive committee, arrangements were completed for the annual entertainment and reception, to honor the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, by the Curley Club, and to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Continental, Thursday evening, May 25, at 8 o'clock.

Weight Loss Success Story Inspires Wave of Imitation

By Ida Jean Kain

Apparently, there is nothing that spurs you on like hearing about somebody else who has had the courage to get her figure back, particularly if she is around your age, weight and measurements.

The story of the remarkable grandmother who reduced 85 pounds and took a job in a war plant has been the incentive for a great many excessively overweight women who are writing to tell me they are started on their way to slimness and health.

Our story today is about a Canadian, 5 feet and no inches, who made up her mind she was through being rolypoly. She had only a minor job of reducing to do, but a major job of streamlining, and that is the case with so many of you that her program should be a great help.

Takes Off 20 Pounds

"I weighed 136 pounds and my measurements were, bust, 38 inches; waitst, 29, and hips, 39. By counting the calories and sticking close to the protective foods, I took off 20 pounds in 10 weeks. I also followed your plan of exercise and spent 15 minutes a day in slimming my waist and hips. Now, my measurements are, bust, 34 inches; waist, 26, hips, 34 inches, and my weight is down to 115 pounds. How's that for an old lady of 45?"

Perfect, just perfect! Let's figure out how she did it. By reducing her weight to normal she normalized her bust measurement. The 20 pounds off slimmed this measurements down 4 inches. Diet is the only way to reduce the bust. Exercise does not reduce this measurement, but it does tone the pectoral muscles and improve the contour and so is important.

Streamlined Figure

Precision exercise is what enabled our model reducer to slim 3 inches off the waistline and 5 inches off the hips. She now has a perfect bust measurement, a waistline 8 inches smaller, and hips the same size as the bust. She could have lost the 20 pounds without exercising but she would not have had such lovely proportions when she finished.

Now, in case you simply do not have time to follow such a program, let me tell you that she does all her own housework, cooks for two 'teen-age children and a husband, all with husky appetites, and holds a regular job doing volunteer office work for the war effort. Our spring bonnet is off to her.

If you want to take off 20 pounds in 10 weeks, send for the "Victory Reducing Diet," and—if you want to perfect your midsection." Just inclose a large stamped return envelope to Ida Jean Kain at The Washington Post.

Senora Bonilla To Give Talk

"Central America—Wonderland of the Future" will be the subject of the talk by Senora Jewel de Bonilla at the Pan American Union tonight at 9 p. m.

A prominent Latin American, Senora de Bonilla is the widow of Aristides Bonilla, one-time Commercial Attache of the Legation of Costa Rica in Washington and Consul General in New York. The distinguished American-born Costa Rican is, however, a personality in her own right, being at present "ideas" editor and Latin-American consultant for Modern Industry in New York. Formerly managing editor of La Revista Dupont, Spanish edition of Dupont magazine, she was the first woman ever sent by Dupont to South America on company business.

A graduate of Columbia University in painting and design, Senora de Bonilla manages to be at the same time an artist, lecturer, businesswoman and socialite. She believes that no other area in the world has the possibilities of Central America and is ready to prove her point when, on Thursday evening, she speaks in English at the Pan American Union.

The lecture will be open to the public.

Mother of Eight Children Defends Mother's Day Custom as Lovely Sentiment; Hopes It Never Dies Before Christianity, It Existed as Pagan Festival

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been pained recently by reading the letters from people who do not like the custom of Mother's Day. Such expressions as "ridiculous racket," "commercial exploitation" and "emotional blackmail,"—when applied to Mother's Day,—are very abhorrent to persons of finer sensibilities.

Being the mother of six fine daughters and two sons, I think the custom of Mother's Day is a lovely sentiment and I hope it never dies. Certainly children do not need to wait until Mother's Day to show their love and appreciation of their mother; and not only am I reminded of the love of my children on Mother's Day; but "every day in every way." This past May 14, my heart was made glad by receiving letters, cards and little gifts from each of my daughters; and a message from far across the sea, from my only living son.

While the formal observance of Mother's Day in this country is very recent, the idea may be traced back to ancient times. Reverence for motherhood is older, indeed, than the Christian faith. Rhea, the great "mother of the gods," was worshiped in Asia Minor. But with her, as with Juno, it was the power of her majesty and might, rather than the power of her love, that was celebrated. Rhea (or Cybele, as she was also called) was pictured as traveling in a chariot drawn by lions. The lions, the oak and pine trees were her emblems. From Asia Minor, these rites were taken to Greece and Rome, where they became part of the feast of Hilaria, held on the Ides of March.

Early Church Honored The Mother of Jesus

WITH the coming of the Christian era, this and others of the old heathen festivals were supplanted by ceremonies of the church. Mary, the mother of Jesus, became the "blessed mother" of the Roman Catholic faith; and thus the "Mother Church" idea arose. Out of this, in time, grew another beautiful idea,—the English custom of setting aside a special day, "Mothering Day," in the middle of Lent, when all young men and women who were serving as apprentices away from home were asked to go home to visit their parents.

Yet for many, many years our busy and sometimes careless America, we paid no attention to this ancient tradition. It is only in recent years that the custom has arisen in this country,—spontaneously, as it were; seeming to without reference to the past. dates from May, 1907, when Miss Anna Jarvis, a Sunday School teacher in Philadelphia, arranged for special services in church and Sunday School, to honor all loving unselfish mothers, living or dead. She asked that white carnations be worn by those attending the services,—an idea borrowed from President William McKinley, who always wore this favorite flower in honor of his mother.

Protestant Churches Fostered Custom Here

THE following year, other churches adopted the program, and the second Sunday in May was agreed upon as a suitable date. By 1911, the observance had spread to every State in the Union; and was also observed that year in Canada, Mexico, South America, Africa and China; as well as in Japan and some islands in the Pacific. Leaflets suggesting suitable programs were printed in 10 languages and distributed in these lands. . . .

In 1914, Congress officially sponsored Mother's Day, recommending to President Wilson that a day be set apart in honor of American mothers. On May 9, the President issued a proclamation directing Government officials to display the United States flag on all Government buildings, and inviting citizens to display the flag at their homes and other suitable places on the second Sunday in May as a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

Eloquent Tribute From Famous Men

THE great Napoleon said "France needs nothing so much as good mothers." An old writer says "One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters." Oliver Wendell Holmes writes: "Youth fades, love droops, the leaves of friendship fall: a mother's secret hope outlives them all." N. P. Willis writes: "One lamp, thy mother love, amid the stars shall lift its pure flame changeless, and before the throne of God burn through eternity. MRS. J. W. C.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Original Party Ideas Offset Lack of Space and Equipment

Put your wits to work when you have the gang in for supper. Let originality be the keynote. Even if home is a Lilliputian apartment, no one expects to be served a five-course meal, at an exquisitely appointed table, with a maid in attendance.

Martha Ellyn

If your problem is many friends and limited space, that's where the fun begins. Make the most if home is a Lilliputian apartment, of the possibilities as did one clever hostess recently. A dining table wasn't among her furnishings. This wasn't her handicap. It proved a novelty. When the dinner hour arrived, the hostess brought out a crisp tablecloth and placed it on the floor unceremoniously. Her husband supplied the silverware, napkins and cushions. Then the guests were told to take their places on the floor. To date I've had no reports that rheumatic or dignified guests objected.

What was served that delightful evening? No, not the usual potato salad, baked ham, hot rolls, ice cream and coffee. This hostess carried her originality into the food. This was her menu:

Supper Menu

Jellied Consomme
Tomato-Avocado Salad
Mayonnaise Muffin Treats
Baked Alaska Coffee

Service plates were used adequate for holding the cup containing the jellied consomme, the salad and piece de resistance—the muffin treat. These were placed before the guests after they had taken their lowly seats. No passing of bread was necessary because the muffin treat served as "meat and bread." This was made by the following recipe:

MAYONNAISE MUFFIN TREAT

Sift three times 1½ cups sifted enriched flour with ¾ cup yellow cornmeal, 3½ teaspoons baking powder and 2 teaspoons salt. Add 2-3 cup milk and 1 egg all at once. Add 1-3 cup real mayonnaise and mix well. Bake in greased large custard cups in moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, for 25 minutes or until done. Remove muffin top with sharp knife and scoop out inside. Fill with creamed chicken and mushrooms or cooked ham and peas or other combination of meat and vegetable. Replace muffin top. Yield: 6 services.

Baked Alaska Easy to Make

Many persons have the idea that to produce Baked Alaska takes hours of work and skilled performance. In reality this is an easy dessert to prepare. This hostess served Baked Alaska in one cake as a centerpiece—for a moment. It was made by this recipe:

BAKED ALASKA

Cover a bread board with heavy paper. Place on board one large slice of cake. On cake slice place a solidly frozen brick of ice cream that has been hollowed slightly and filled with fresh, sweetened, strawberries and pineapple. Be sure to have the cake slice 1 inch longer so that the ice cream will come within ½ inch from the edge when placed upon it. Cover ice cream and cake well with a meringue made with 6 beaten egg white, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 6 tazlespoons confectioner's sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bake the Alaska in hot oven, 450 degrees, until meringue is browned. Slice it from paper onto serving plater. Makes 6 servings.

Army Releases 14 More Planes For Airline Use

The Army has released 13 more Douglas DC-3 and one Lockheed Lodestar transport planes to the airlines, it was announced yesterday by the Government agencies concerned, bringing to 228 the total now available for commercial service.

Fourteen similar aircraft were released May 18, but some weeks will be required to reconvert these to commercial use.

Responsibility for allocation of the returned airplanes among the carriers on the basis of priority frame demands rests with the Civil Aeronautics Board, which announced this distribution: American Airlines 3 United 2, Western 2, Northwest 2, Eastern 2; Pennsylvania Central 1, Colonial 1, and Chicago and Southern 1.

Prior to the war the airlines operated 314 planes. The Army requisitioned 158 of these in May, 1942, and since last summer has been returning them as conditions permit.

Airlines Face New Problem

A taxation problem menacing the air transport industry with grave financial difficulties unless Congress provides a solution is posed by the Supreme Court decision in the Northwest Airlines case, according to the current issue of Aviation News, McGraw-Hill publication.

"By a margin of 5 to 4 the court decided Minnesota has the right to tax all of Northwest's fleet because the planes are based in that State. It established the tenet that an airline's home State may collect taxes for all the line's property not continuously out of the State for all the tax year.

"The majority opinion, an Air Transport Association source pointed out, might mean multiple taxation by the States, through a full personal property assessment at the home base such as Minnesota levied, plus a further tax by individual States where a line operates. A quick check showed that this would mean 23 State taxes for American Airlines and 17 for Eastern Air Lines," the publication states.

Vepco Issue Offered

An underwriting syndicate headed by Stone & Websters and Blodget, Inc., yesterday offered $23,000,000 of first mortgage and refunding bonds of the irginia Electric & Power Co. at 103¼ and accrued interest. The bonds carry a 3 per cent interest rate and mature in 1974.

Issuance of the bonds is part of a plan under which the Virginia Public Service Co., a unit in Associated Gas & Elec. Corp. system, is being merged into Virginia Electric & Power Co. Also under the plan 289,491 shares of $5 preferred stock are being issued to present holders of preferred stocks in the two companies.

Net proceeds from the sale of the bonds, together with $9,000,000 to be derived from sale of new notes and other general funds, will be applied toward refinancing debt securities of Virginia Public Service, which will be assumed by the merged company.

Sharp & Dohme, Inc., maker of pharmaceutical supplies, reports net profit for the quarter ended March 31 of $410,451 equal to 27 cents a common share, compared with $450,173 or 32 cents in the 1943 quarter.

Noranda Mines, Ltd., reports net profit for the March quarter of $2,337,627 equal to $1.04 a share, compared with $2,763,618 or $1.23 a share in the similar 1943 quarter.

Release of Tools Urged to Perfect Postwar Models

New York, May 24 (AP).—More tools and materials for perfection of postwar models of consumer goods should be released to industry to help it hold transition period unemployment to a minimum, in the opinion of Leo H. Rich, industrial designer.

Although optimistic about the business outlook, Rich declared in an address prepared for the American Statistical Association: "A readjustable policy, based on old models of consumer durable goods, may hamper the transition from war to peace-time production and lead to unemployment."

Rich cited the Baruch-Hancock recommendations that manufacturers be permitted to secure tools in advance of the end of the war, and said that without new tools pre-war models would result.

"There may be considerable resistance to these old models if the consumer feels the manufacturer is holding back," he commented.

"The program of reconversion facing the automobile industry (which does expect first to produce pre-war types) does not apply to manufacturers in many other fields and must not be used by them as an excuse to bring out old models."
